Told to Flee U. S., Bradley Says

POULSON GAVE ORDER TO HIDE, PROBERS HEAR

Instructed to Stay In Canada to Evade Inquiry, 'Graft' Witness Testifies.

PAID $400 FOR 'TRIP'

Received $3,374 From Dem Chairman, Davey's Accuser Informs Senators.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — A mysterious "flight" to Canada at the behest of State Democratic Chairman Francis W. Poulson was related to the Ohio senate investigating committee today by Lee Bradley, asphalt salesman who previously testified that Poulson and Gov. Martin L. Davey bargained with automobile manufacturers for campaign contributions.

Bradley said that in 1935 he learned through an unnamed Detroit attorney that a man "representing the U. S senate investigators" was looking for him, and that Poulson gave him $400 with the order

"Get the hell out of the United States and stay in Canada until I tell you to come out."

Agent Gets 'Tip.'

Bradley said he stayed in Canada 87 days until he "foolishly" telegraphed his wife to meet him in an Ontario hotel, and the federal agent also met him there. He did not disclose why he was wanted, and the present committee did not pursue that line of questioning

The testimony was brought out when a letter from Bradley to Poulson dated March 14, 1935, was read into the record. It said Bradley "understood" that Poulson had arranged for a Chrysler automobile to be sold to him at the factory price

"You said before that you got a car without paying a penny," suggested Committee Counsel James Metzenbaum of Cleveland.

"I did not pay any money," said Bradley.

He said that Poulson had held out $200 of money due him to apply on the car purchase price but that then he quarreled with Poulson and told the Democratic leader he would not pay for the car.

Agreement Made.

He said Poulson agreed to pay after Bradley was directed to "flee to Canada."

"In fairness to everybody, you should tell what you mean by fleeing to Canada," said Metzenbaum.

The witness offered as evidence to the graft-hunting committee a photostat which he said was of

Traffic Fines For Month Hit $776, New Record Seen

While police continued their relentless march on traffic violators, mounting traffic fines for February were due to establish a collection record, a survey of police figures showed today.

At the present rate, which is at a somewhat slower pace than the record collection of the previous week when police started their lightless parking campaign, collections will hit the $1,000 mark for the month, an unprecedented record in the history of the system.

During the past week, $227 in traffic tag fines were collected to boost the month's total to date to $776, or more than twice the amount collected during the entire month of January when $329 was recorded.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates, who still had traffic records under lock and key today explained the dismissal of four tickets to one downtown firm by stating that an agreement had been made with the firm by former administration two years ago, to afford the company's customers a five-minute parking courtesy.

He explained that the firm was located on a one way street and that the courtesy had been extended by the present administration. It was pointed out however that it did not give the firm parking privileges on the street.

RIVER BOAT BURNS

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The Ohio river coal-unloading boat was a charred mass today as a result of a blaze which caused damage estimated by Fire Chief Barney Houston at $15,000. The craft is owned by the Hatfield-Campbell Coal company.

State Shifts Sales Tax to Relief Fund

$10,000 Due City, County For General Operating Expenses Diverted.

Mansfield and other Richland county subdivisions will help pay the county's $20,000 relief bills for January at the expense of their general operating funds, whether they like the idea or not.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe had been informed by the state auditor that the county's allocation of sales tax funds for January, totaling approximately $10,000, and ordinarily used for operating costs, will be diverted into the state relief fund under the new relief plan passed recently by the legislature.

The January allocation will be held in Columbus to be used in setting up the relief fund, with the county to be rationed about $5,500 monthly for relief until the fund is exhausted. Then another diversion will be made of sales tax receipts to continue the relief program, Wolfe said.

Costs City $4,000.

The diversion of January funds will deprive the city of Mansfield and the county of $4,000 each and the county's less populous subdivisions of nearly $2,000, Wolfe estimated.

City Auditor Paul Kelley said the $4,000 loss to the city would cause no inconvenience now, but that if it is repeated or not made up later in the year, the general fund expenditures would have to be pared to comply with the reductions.

Both city and county budgets were set up before the relief legislation was enacted and the sales tax allocations were included in the appropriations on the basis of last year's receipts from the state.

The relief law which calls for the diversion provides $6,500,000 for direct relief purposes, with the amount to come from sales tax receipts. Because tax collections were low last month and the state drew $2,000,000 from the receipts, almost the entire amount collected will be used for relief purposes, Wolfe said.

The remaining $4,500,000 will be diverted later in the year, according to information from the state auditor's office.

Wolfe said the loss of $4,000 by the county would place further restrictions on general fund expenditures, but that it would not necessarily mean that salaries and current bills will not be paid.

NAMES SUSPECT

Lorain Chief Files Murder Charge Against Handyman.

LORAIN — (AP) — Police Chief Theodore Walker signed a murder warrant today for the arrest of Frank Naiberg, about 45, in the hammer and knife slaying last Thursday of Mrs. Mary Wallace, 31.

Detective John A. Meister described Naiberg as an odd-jobs man and a rejected suitor of Mrs. Wallace, the mother of four children.

Meister and City Prosecutor Austin O'Toole made a week-end trip to Sandusky, Dearborn and Detroit, Mich., and Fort Wayne, Ind., searching for Naiberg.

The detective said Naiberg stopped at a Sandusky fire station about two hours after Mrs. Wallace was slain in her small cottage on the eastern outskirts of Lorain.

President Makes No Comment On Developments of Week-End.

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Foreign affairs held the attention of President Roosevelt today but whatever reactions he might have had to week-end developments were kept secret with no immediate likelihood that he would break his silence.

Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre would make no comment when asked whether the chief executive had studied the address of Adolf Hitler and the resignation of Anthony Eden from the British cabinet.

THRILL FATAL

Rioting Vienna Students Spread Panic Among Jews

Many Prepare to Flee As Nazis, Anti-Nazis Clash In Streets, Take Possession of University Buildings.

(By United Press)

VIENNA—Panic spread among Vienna Jews as Nazis and anti-nazis clashed in front of the University.

Numerous wealthy Jews made arrangements to leave the country, seeking temporary refuge.

Nations of the Danubian basin alternated between hope and fear as to their own position under Europe's diplomatic new deal.

The first real clash here between Nazis and non-nazis was of potentially serious character.

Girls Join Melee.

At first there were minor fights. Police sought to disperse the rioters. Then outsiders joined Nazi students and girl students joined with boys. Shouting as they went into the university, they took possession and began shouting:

"Judah, jump the twig!"—go hang yourselves

"When Jewish blood drips from our knives everything will go well."

Police were hard pressed. They contented themselves, for a time, with keeping traffic moving and separating such clashing groups as they could reach.

Nazis had it their way at first. But the opposition gathered strength as rioting developed. Members of the Roman Catholic Youth organization began a large scale distribution of hand bills praising Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg. Socialist and Communist youths began gathering to join in counter-action against the Nazis.

The "Austrian Youth," a sub-organization of the Governmental fatherland front, began its pro-Nazi orientation with an issue of pamphlets emphasizing Nazi-like nationalism, and failing to mention Christianism of Catholicism which had been mentioned unfailingly theretofore in all declarations.

JAPS REPULSED

Chinese Line Blocks Attempt to Cross Yellow River.

SHANGHAI —(AP)— The Japanese were repulsed today in an attempt to cross the mighty Yellow river just north of Kaifeng, important city on the Lunghai railway line in northern Honan province.

Japanese forces which for weeks have been moving southward in a campaign to cut the Lunghai railway were spreading widely to the west into Shansi province gradually enclosing Linfeng, provincial capital.

Troops following a branch of the Peiping-Hankow line into the coach coal mining region north of the Yellow river pushed about 50 miles westward from captured Sinsiang

Japanese military dispatches reported the capture of Lucheng in southeast Shansi province

ICE CRIPPLES LAKE REGION, DAMAGE SOARS

County Escapes Brunt of Sleet Storm, Worst In 10 Years; Shelby Isolated.

PHONE, POWER LINES DOWN

Total Loss Set at Quarter Million Dollars; Huron County Hardest Hit.

Northwestern Ohio worked today to re-establish its communication with the rest of the state after the worst ice storm in 10 years left a number of communities isolated and caused damage estimated at more than a quarter million dollars.

Richland county escaped the worst of the storm which reached a peak at midnight Saturday, but lines of the American Telephone and Telegraph company were leveled north and west of Mansfield, and Shelby was virtually isolated until 2.30 p. m Sunday

Ice Inch Thick.

The ice, which resulted from the freezing of a heavy rain Saturday night, coated communication lines and trees with a gleaming sheath and made traveling on streets and highways treacherous. In some sections, ice nearly an inch thick formed on telephone and power wires bearing poles to the earth and blocking highways.

Light Plant Damaged.

Huron county, in the center of the storm area, reported the greatest damage of any of the dozen or more counties hit by the sleet.

Damage to the municipal light plant at Norwalk was set at $7,500, and many telephones in the city were still out of service today. At Willard ice formed on the hands of the clock on the city hall, stopping the huge timepiece at 6:30 p. m. Saturday.

Trees were down in both Willard and Norwalk and in the Willard-Attica road only one-way traffic was permitted because of the broken trees and utility poles. City officials at Norwalk said it would require nearly $2,000 to clear the streets of fallen trees.

Orchards Hit.

Orchardists in the lake counties reported serious damage to fruit trees which were shattered under the weight of the heavy ice blanket. Peach orchards near Sandusky were hardest hit, reports said.

Joseph Urban, 32, Cleveland, and Avery Upshaw, 27, colored, of Cincinnati, were victims of the storm. Urban was found frozen to death after the wind demolished his shack on the lakefront. Upshaw was killed when an automobile skidded into a loading platform.

A 16-car Pennsylvania freight train was derailed by the ice at Toledo, spilling more than 200 tons of coal along the tracks

JAIL POPULATION DROPS, 3 FREED

Number In County Bastile Reduced to 31 Over Week-End.

The population of the county jail dropped at 31 today with the release of three prisoners after serving out fines and jail terms.

Those released were Hiram Littleton, 39, Shelby, John Williams, 57, Mansfield, and Ed Wilson, 39, Rossville.

Littleton served out a $10 fine and $11.96 costs imposed following a conviction on a drunk and disorderly charge. Williams served 30 days for petty larceny and Wilson was freed after serving out a $19 fine and $8.55 costs for intoxication.

Youth Accused of Assaulting Wife of Hotel Owner in Room

Leaping a bannister and jumping 12 feet to the office floor in his escape from a North Diamond street hotel following an alleged attack on the proprietor's wife, a 21-year-old youth was held in jail today on a charge of assault with intent to rape.

The youth, who gave the name of Luther M. Stall, Arcadia, pleaded innocent in municipal court today. When the woman declined to testify against him in the crowded courtroom, Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch continued the case until tomorrow

Meanwhile City Solicitor Marion D Ward sought to change the charge after the woman declined to assist in the prosecution. He indicated that a charge of assault with intent to kill might be placed against the man on the basis that he had choked the woman.

The man was captured on North Franklin street by Capt. John Miller and Patrolmen John Gilbert and Russell Miles after an hour's search of the vicinity. They said an unloaded revolver, stolen from a North Main street store was found in his possession.

Police were told that Stall came to the hotel and asked for a room and while the woman was showing him the room, he pulled out a gun, shoved her onto the bed and tried to choke her. When she screamed, she said, he fled

The officers said the suspect is a former inmate of a Toledo insane asylum

FLAYS 'WEAK' STAND IN FACE OF 'THREATS'

This Troubled World At A Glance

LONDON — Anthony Eden, whose resignation as Great Britain's foreign secretary overshadowed the reaction to Feuhrer Hitler's Sunday address, told the house of commons today, in explaining his action, that he could not go along with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain on what he called a "weak" stand as regarded Italy and other dictator nations.

PARIS — France anxiously watches developments in both Britain and Germany. Pledged by treaty to defend Czechoslovakia, expected to be the next target in Hitler's move to "assimilate" central Europe under Nazi control, France considers Britain's willingness to make concessions to Germany and Italy as amounting to desertion of France, leaving her alone in a crisis-fraught Europe. (Page 1.)

BERLIN—Nazis, cheered by Hitler's "iron and steel speech Sunday, and his demand for colonies, expect summer to see nazification of Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Bulgaria. Resignation of Eden in Great Britain seen as victory for Nazis (Page 1.)

VIENNA—Street rioting occurs between pro-Nazi and anti-Nazi elements, as result of Hitler's Sunday pronouncements. Panic spreads among Jews. (Page 1.)

WASHINGTON—Hitler's announcement of Nazi policies yesterday caused little excitement in the nation's capital. Reports indicated that statements by Herman Dodd, resigned ambassador to Germany, had earlier provided government leaders with information that Hitler's ambitions are even greater than what he outlined in his speech. FASCISTS GAIN

Spain's Loyalists Surrender at Points Near Teruel.

HENDAYE, France. — (AP) — Fighting raged in the heart of Teruel today and government defenders were reported surrendering in small groups as insurgent assault forces battled to regain full possession of the strategic south Aragon city.

While the desperate government garrison was being pounded into submission, another insurgent force launched a new offensive against the Sagunto highway, advancing five miles southeast of Teruel. It appeared that Gen Francisco Franco's army intended driving as far as possible toward the Mediterranean

A destructive artillery and airplane bombardment preceded this advance.

Inside Teruel, the government commander sent the insurgents a request that the remainder of the war-torn city's civilian population be evacuated.

Resigned Secretary Draws Cheers As He Declares "Strong Convictions" Must Rule; Italian Envoy Meets Chamberlain In "Surprise."

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, in an amazing verbal struggle with his retiring foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, told a turbulent house of commons today that Britain had agreed to start negotiations for a new Anglo-Italian understanding "immediately" in Rome in the interest of peace.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Anthony Eden told a packed, breathless house of commons today he had resigned as foreign secretary rather than deal with Italy in the face of Premier Mussolini's "rife, hostile propaganda" against Britain and Il Duce's "glorification" of victories in Spain.

"Agreements that are worth while are never made one the basis of threats," he cried.

Cheered repeatedly both from the labor benches and some sections of the government supporters, Eden declared frankly that this was an occasion when "strong political convictions must override all other considerations."

"No man can be the keeper of another man's conscience," he declared.

The determined prime minister, in spite of world wide reverberations from what some of his critics called the sacrifice of Eden to Europe's dictators, went ahead full speed with his new cabinet-approved approach to Mussolini.

Challenges Chamberlain.

Directly contradicting Chamberlain's statement, in the letter accepting his resignation, that the differences between them were not fundamental, Eden threw down this challenge:

"Within the past few weeks, upon one most important decision of foreign policy which did not concern Italy at all, the difference was fundamental."

"It may be argued," Eden continued, "that this is not a difference of fundamental principles in the sense that the objective of all foreign policy is the maintenance of peace.

"That is perfectly true, but in international affairs can anyone define where outlook and method end and principle begins?"

Eden was given a tremendous two-minute ovation as he sank with visible weariness into his seat at the end of his speech.

Chamberlain, with whom Eden had split on the whole issue of foreign policy, received some labor boos, along with his supporters' cheers.

The prime minister entered into the talks along with Viscount Halifax, who has been placed in "temporary" charge of the foreign office succeeding Eden.

Also present at the conference was Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent under-secretary of foreign affairs.

Chamberlain went at noon to Buckingham palace to give King George his account of events leading up to Eden's resignation.

Nazis Cheer Hitler's Promise Germany To Be 1st In Europe

(By United Press)

BERLIN—Germany who yesterday heard their leader, Adolf Hitler, expound his domestic and foreign policy awaited today a confidently anticipated approach from Great Britain that would break the increasingly sharp division between the totalitarian and the democratic nations of Europe.

As for the Fuehrer's speech, it had invited Europe's attention again to the fact that here in its heart were 66,000,000 people, strong and proud, who would be second to none.

It had demanded colonies; it had demanded that attacks on Germany cease; it had emphasized Germany's new unity, her growing might—more babies, more soldiers, more steel, more guns.

It seemed, in the view of people here, to raise almost as many questions as it answered—what would be the measures for an expected further strengthening of the army which he disclosed? What were the nature of reprisals planned against "foreign slanderers?" What means were to be taken to extend to 10,000,000 Germans now living under foreign flags the political protection to which, in Hitler's view, they are entitled.

There were questions left unanswered after forecasts that Hitler would make specific statements on them. There had not been a declaration of Germany's respect for Austria's sovereignty and integrity, though Vienna had reported that Dr. Arthur Von Seyss-Inquart, new Austrian Nazi minister of interior, took to Vienna with him a marked copy of Hitler's speech containing such a reference.

There had not been, as forecast an announcement of a more conciliatory attitude toward opposition elements in religion.

But as regards Europe, the belief was that the speech in ef-

British Cabinet Shift, Hitler Threat Puts France On 'Spot'

EDITOR'S NOTE—The strong German stand taken yesterday by Hitler and the present British cabinet crisis, brought on by Chamberlain's "wish to talk turkey" with Hitler, have left France in a difficult spot, inasmuch as she is bound by treaty to defend Czechoslovakia, expected to be the next target for Hitler in his Nazi assimilation policy. H. R. Knickerbocker, ace International News Service correspondent, here discusses France's dilemma.

PARIS—Central Europe is dismayed today. Czechoslovakia is terrified. France is grimly resigned to the worst, and England has changed her foreign minister as the result of Adolf Hitler's reichstag declaration and the preceding events which caused it to be the least conciliatory public speech he has made since he came into power.

The French are shaking under the blow of Anthony Eden's resignation, which is taken here to mean that Premier Chamberlain has decided to abandon Czechoslovakia to Hitler's threat.

"When Germany was weak, she was obliged to acquiesce to the persecution of Germans on her frontiers. Now we will know how to defend German interests wherever they may be, and among those interests are those of German men on those frontiers who cannot obtain for themselves cultural and national liberty."

This sentence of Hitler's, plus his naming 10,000,000 as the number of Germans who need his protection, is interpreted as the plainest intimation that he intends to incorporate both Austria's 7,000,000 and Czechoslovakia's 3,000,000 in the reich.

Moody Man Causes Girl To Wonder

By VIRGINIA LEE

"Don't think anything of it: that is just my way!"

Do you know of anyone who uses that sort of remark as an alibi when he—or she—does something outrageous and fears your righteous wrath? We all use this handy excuse occasionally, I am sure.

But the sort of person who makes unkind remarks, is mean and sarcastic and then says airily, "Oh, that's just my way. I didn't mean a thing by it," is a person to be avoided

JEAN'S boy friend is of this sort. He can be nice on occasion.

"I really don't know why I love him like I do," she writes. "He always wants me to wait for him, and if I don't he sometimes gets angry, won't talk, and sometimes breaks up with me. He claims he loves me, but he doesn't believe me. Another thing is he says mean things and does mean things and when I tell him he says that's just his way.

"I really don't know what to do. I'd hate to give him up, for I don't believe I could ever forget him. But if I knew I couldn't get along I would try anyway. He always says he likes me, but do you think he really does? When he comes to see me he sleeps and even tells me he doesn't sleep anywhere else."

Forget Him.

I'm afraid my opinion would be to forget about him, if you can, Jean. You probably never had to live with a so-called "temperamental" person or you wouldn't hesitate. It is nerve wracking, believe me, never to know in what mood your nearest and dearest is to be in. Whether to be prepared for a kiss or a slap and nasty remark. To invite friends in and then have your mate rave and maybe treat them coldly — embarrassing you and them.

If he would acknowledge that he is hasty and ill-tempered when he gives way to temper tantrums you could forgive and try to help him. But that old and wornout alibi that he "can't help it," is discouraging.

His belief in you is another point that is likely to make you very unhappy. If your best friend won't trust you, to whom are you to look for faith? There is nothing more maddening to me than to be perfectly honorable and truthful and have a person say he doesn't believe what you say. And I don't think I'm unique in that feeling.

Going to sleep when he called wouldn't make a very big hit with me, either. It insinuates that you are a very boring person—or a very restful one—but who wants to be that restful? I'm sorry, dear, but I don't believe the young man you describe would make a very charming husband.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Feb. 22.

Judging by the lunar transits, this should be a day in which affairs will be stabilized, old investments will show some action and property and real estate will increase. Elders also may be well disposed, and friendship may play an important part in advancing the affairs. But be careful of petty disputes and do not work at cross currents in employment.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of some definite gain in the affairs, with increase in investments and property values, as well as through the friendly aid of elders or long-established interests. But these encouraging prospects should not be complicated by contention or petty wrangling, and it would be well not to aggravate employers.

A child born on this day may be steady, industrious and practical, although it may be inclined to trivial arguments and disputes in employment. However, it may gain through elders, or by wills, bequests or insurance.

Water Plays Big Part In Reducing

By GLADYS GLAD

It is a well-known fact that in the past all that was required of operatic stars was that they have beautiful voices and know how to use them. But that, of course, was before the time of our Lily Pons, Grace Moore and Gladys Swarthout. Today, singing stars must be pleasing to the eye as well as to the ear. They must be slender and well formed, and so, because their voices are of prime importance to them, they employ only a safe and healthful reducing routine when they are trying to lose weight.

Dainty and petite Lily Pons is a grand example of what the modern prima donna is expected to look like. Lily bears no resemblance to the old-fashioned type of vocalist. Her figure possesses the slender supply lines of youthful symmetry. And as a matter of fact, she usually has to diet to maintain her normal weight, rather than to reduce.

Lily believes in obtaining plenty of exercise — and swimming is her favorite sport. But she also believes in taking her water internally as well as externally, for she claims that the copious consumption of water is one of the grandest of figure beautifiers.

Some tubby girls have the idea that water is fattening and that they should therefore abstain from it. They think that they will lose weight if they curtail their daily water intake. But the truth of the matter is quite the opposite. Any woman who is overweigh and desires to reduce should see to it that she consumes plenty of water each day, for water assists the body in keeping its normal weight.

In many cases, overweight is due partly to the improper removal of waste material from the body. Water cleanses the alimentary canal, dissolves the waste material in the tissues and sweeps the intestines clean of poisons. In this way, by increasing bodily health, it assists in reducton.

Water Needed.

Moreover, it is necessary that a person consume large quantities of water while reducing. The reducing process breaks up the fat supply in the tissues, and a poisonous waste remains. The water flushes the entire system, and keeps it free from these poisons. And as a result, the weight of the body tends toward normality.

In addition to drinking plenty of water daily for the benefit of her figure, Lily Pons also insists upon exercising regularly. Lily's favorite all-around exercise is a modification of the well-known deep-knee bending one.

To do this exercise, stand erect in your bare or stocking feet, hands on hips, legs together. Then slowly rise on the tips of your toes, keeping your head and chest up. Next, still on your toes, sink slowly downward into a sitting position, as though you were resting on your haunches. Keep your head and chest up, and your back straight during this movement, too. Then rise again to your toes, and finally return to first position.

Slice meat and reheat in a casserole on top of escalloped potatoes or noodles.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

AT MARY'S cry of dismay and tragically outstretched arm pointing to the basket of roses which, for some unknown reason, had aroused her emotion, Mr. Milner, the hotel manager, deftly grasped his obvious cue and promptly effaced himself.

"Yes, Mr. Veritzen ordered the flowers for your homecoming," he said. "There was also another order. You will find all the cards on the flowers."

He was at the door with his hand upon the latch at the last word. Carefully not looking at any of us, he added:

"Mrs. Pell, the housekeeper, will be in the coridor, waiting whenever you're ready for her. Your luggage will be up in five minutes. I shall come back myself in a little while to see that you are as comfortable as we can make you."

He slipped unobtrusively out of the room. But the door had barely closed behind him before Mary said viciously, "The old beast!" and I knew that she did not mean Mr. Milner.

"What is it, Mary?" I pleaded, for her mobile face was twisted with an anger that I did not understand. "Are you sure you are not mistaken about whatever unkind thing you believe your father-in-law must have done? Look around you, Darling, at the marvelous orchids and roses. The man has spent a small fortune to welcome you."

"I don't care if he's spent a million," Mary said stormily. "He's pulled the meanest trick with those roses."

She drew a deep, gulping breath and rushed on:

"That's our special rose, Noel's and mine. He's always sent them to me on special occasions. I had a couple tucked into my bridal bouquet, remember?"

"Yes, I remember," I said slowly, beginning to understand. "But—may he not have sent them to you for that reason, because Noel could not?"

Mary shot a reproachful look at me.

"You're just stalling, Auntie Madge," she said with uncanny perspicacity. "You know Father Veritzen is too keen to do a thing like that unless he wanted to be malevolent. He isn't the kindly old Mr Pickwick, blundering all over the lot. I could forgive him pulling a worse boner than that, if he were. But that bird has his feet on the ground every second of the time. Catch him making a move out of turn! He knows I couldn't bear to get those roses from anyone save Noel. He knows they're our special rose, and he's just put in that basket to torment me. Well! I never thought I'd tear that brand of roses to pieces, but here's where I begin."

She started toward the basket of roses, but I put a restraining hand upon her arm, for a fantastic idea had just come to me.

"Don't do anything so sinful as to destroy beauty like that, Mary!" I urged. "You don't need to keep it in here, where you'll have to look at it, so why not give it to Miss Whitlock to brighten her room?"

Mary, always generous, stopped short in her tracks.

Gives Roses Away.

"I'm as big a beast as my father-in-law," she said contritely. "Of course you may have it, Miss Whitlock, if you want it."

"Want it!" Miss Whitlock breathed, and I knew from the inflections of the utterance that she also was a flower lover. "I'd love it!"

"All right, it's yours," Mary said carelessly, "but don't let me see it again."

"I'll see to that," Miss Whitlock promised, and then I spoke again, quickly.

"Mary, will you do something for me? It may not be pleasant, but I have a reason for asking it."

"Of course," she said.

"Then go over to that basket of roses and look at the envelope attached to it."

Her face was rebellious, but she obediently walked over to the basket and, stooping, looked at the envelope nestling among the flowers. Then, with a hoarse exclamation, she snatched it from the roses, tore it open and read the enclosed card, her face transformed with happiness.

Ted Lewis At Madison.

Ted Lewis will bring his famous orchestra and revue to the stage of the Madison theater on Tuesday for a one-day stand. Among the stars featured in the Revue are the Sylvia Manon Foursome, the Ben Yots Varsity Coeds, Gay Nixon, song stylist, Ray Royce, Theo. Troy, Loretta Lane, Betty Dickerson, and Charles "Snowball" Whittier, the "shufflin' shadow." Lewis will act as master of ceremonies. The screen fare will be "Love Is a Headache," with Franchot Tone and Gladys George. The film revolves around the tongue-in-cheek comedy romance of an actress and a columnist who are in love, but refuse to recognize the symptoms. It takes a couple of orphaned waifs to straighten them out. Supporting the two are Ted Healy, Mickey Rooney, Frank Jenke and Ralph Morgan.

Historical Film At Ohio.

A thrilling picture of America's struggle against England during the War of 1812 is presented in "The Buccaneer," with Fredric March in the title role. The film, at the Ohio theater, is a panorama of a crucial period in history, showing the burning of Washington, the Louisiana of the picturesque Creole days, and the defense of New Orleans by Gen. Jackson. March is seen as a pirate who turns out to be a hero when he realizes that his adopted country, the United States, is in danger of destruction. His sweetheart, Margot Grahame, a New Orleans belle, stimulates his patriotism by insisting that he become respectable before their marriage. Others in the cast include Franciska Gaal, Akim Tamiroff and Ian Keith.

"Love On A Budget."

The screen's famous Jones family returns to the Majestic theater Tuesday on the mid-week double feature program. In this film Alan Dinehart enters the family circle in the role of "Uncle Charlie," a high-pressure artist and would-be big business man, intent on landing the concessions at the forthcoming Household exposition. How he sells Herbert, the new husband of Bonnie Jones, on one of his ideas, with the thought of making a lot of money himself, forms the plot. But it turns out that Herbert, and not "Uncle Charlie" comes out ahead. Victor McLaglen, Heather Angle, Preston Foster, and Margot Grahame head the cast of "The Informer," the second film on the entertainment list.

Dietrich-Donat.

Out of the Red Revolution in Russia grew the story that brings Marlene Dietrich and Robert Donat to the screen in "Knight Without Armor," which is a picturization of James Hilton's romantic novel. Hilton also wrote "Lost Horizon," one of the ten best pictures of last year. Donat plays an Englishman who becomes embroiled in Russian political upheavals, while Dietrich is seen as a Russian aristocrata who is taken prisoner by the Reds. Dressed as peasants the Countess and the Englishman make a hazardous and adventure-filled journey to the border and freedom. The Ritz program for the middle of the week, starting Tuesday, also includes Bob Steele in "Colorado Kid."

"The Authority on Authorities"

REVERSING THE HAND

Among the reasons why fine players like a split of four trumps in the declarer's hand opposite four in dummy, in preference to a five-three division of the suit, is that either holding may be treated as that of the declarer and the other used for ruffing out losers. When the declarer's hand is used for ruffing, making the dummy the one to set up, the usual order of events is reversed. Such tactics are seldom possible when the declarer has five trumps opposite three in the dummy.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South's original bid on this deal was 1-Spade, which was overcalled by West with 2-Diamonds. North and East passed. In response to a double by South, North called 2-Hearts, South three and North four.

West won the first diamond trick and switched to the heart 3, which North won with the J. The diamond 5 was now ruffed and the club 2 led to West's K. West returned another club and after winning with the Q, declarer ruffed another diamond. On the club A, he discarded a spade and then ruffed the club 10 with the heart 6. The diamond J was now trumped with the heart A and the spade A cashed. When the spade 3 was led, East holding only three trumps, was obliged to trump and return a heart to North's two remaining trumps, the K-9. The last two tricks were North's.

Due to his fine planning, declarer lost only three tricks, the diamond on the first round, the club K and the spade that East ruffed.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

What is the best defense to keep South from making 3-No Trumps on this deal?

My Neighbor Says:

If boiled frosting has been removed from the fire before it is thoroughly cooked, add enough confectioners' sugar to give it the consistency to spread easily.

If decalcomanias do not stick readily to painted furniture, first go over the parts to which they are to be applied with white shellac. Let the shellac dry before applying the designs.

EDEN RIPS AT ITALIAN 'DEAL,' 'WEAK' STAND

Resigned Secretary Cheered as Commons Hears Reasons For Resignations.

commons special police precautions were taken to deal with possible demonstrations in the galleries and lobbies tonight when the crisis is debated.

Liberals to Meet.

Parliamentary circles saw significance in tentative plans for a meeting of liberal national members, whose leader is Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer. It was considered possible this group, along with national labor members, might break away from Chamberlain's conservative-dominated national government.

As Eden left home to go to parliament he was cheered by a small crowd. There were cries of "good old Eden!" and one admirer shouted, "Our new prime minister!"

Lord Halifax, Eden's temporary successor, had to line up with 50 other peers in a queue for the peers' gallery in the house of commons to hear the debate on the crisis. The peers removed their hats solemnly as the speaker of the commons, Capt. Edward Algernon Fitzroy, passed in procession to open the session.

The meeting with Grandi came as Chamberlain staked British empire prestige on a coldly practical foreign policy that scrapped Eden for his refusal to yield to Italian and German power politics.

Presumably, the prime minister wanted definite assurances from Grandi on just what he could tell commons tonight on the prospects of British-Italian reconciliation.

The premier did not explain his criptic statement that Halifax was temporarily in charge of the foreign office. It was believed he was seeking commons reaction to a permanent appointment before making it.

Leaves Smiling.

Grandi remained at No. 10 Downing street, Chamberlain's official residence, for 45 minutes. He emerged, smiling broadly. For a second day hundreds of persons were jammed into the short narrow street which is the heart of the British empire.

Eden's Leamington constituency telegraphed their "continued confidence" in him.

Opposition members of parliament interpreted Chamberlain's summoning Grandi as a "desperate" attempt to obtain definite assurance of bettered British-Italian relations before the prime minister faced what they called a brewing "storm" in commons.

The tall, grim, gouty premier yesterday accepted Eden's termination of their "uneasy partnership." The resignation of Eden, a determined foe of dictators, was announced after the extraordinary cabinet session which followed Chancellor Adolf Hitler's momentous reichstag speech.

Facing a tempest of furious parliamentary enemies and serious danger to his own national tory dominated government, Chamberlain embarked on his chosen path of making friends with Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini before they go to war with him.

If competent predictions are correct, Chamberlain will name as foreign secretary Viscount Halifax, lord president of the council and a recognized friend of Nazi Germany. Halifax was the envoy Chamberlain sent last fall to talk friendship with Hitler.

Chamberlain thus would face commons on a foreign policy of possibly speeding a Mediterranean settlement with Italy, a colonial settlement with Germany, and perhaps shelving the question of Italian troops in Spain and Mussolini's anti-British broadcasts to the moslem world.

The voice of the Nazi fuehrer cried out anew for colonies and flayed Eden — who is cordially disliked by Hitler and Mussolini —even as Chamberlain and his ministers made their decision during three extraordinary Sunday cabinet meetings.

Some quarters said Hitler and Mussolini had warned Chamberlain flatly that he must get rid of Eden before any progress could be made toward a general European settlement.

Rome and Berlin were exultant over the cabinet change. Paris was dismal, seeing a possible open breach bewteen Britain and France.

Calls Hitler Speech 'Lesson' for China.

TOKYO—(AP)—Japan today officially interpreted Chancellor Adolf Hitler's outspoken declarations in the German reichstag as an "important lesson" to China.

A foreign office spokesman commenting on the speech, said it would show the Hankow government it was "seriously mistaken" in its fundamental policy toward Japan and therefore was continuing to commit blunders."

The Japanese foreign office spokesman described Germany's reported recognition of Manchukuo as "in keeping with the trend of world affairs."

Soviet Press Ignores Hitler's Speech.

MOSCOW — (AP) — Chancellor Hitler's momentous speech to the German reichstag was ignored completely in the government controlled soviet press today.

Newspapers failed even to mention it and officials refrained from comment.

The resignation of Great Britain's foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, was reported, but without comment.

BOARD TO MEET

The Mansfield board of education will meet at 4 p. m. today in its monthly session which was moved up to permit board members to attend the Institute of International Understanding at Senior High school tonight.

25,000 FLEEING ARKANSAS FLOOD

Head for Refugee Camps as Icy Waters Inundate Lowlands.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — (U.P.) — More than 25,000 men, women and children, routed from their lowland homes by icy flood waters, were scattered among refugee camps in southwestern Arkansas and southeastern Oklahoma today, many of them exposed to cold weather and endangered by pneumonia.

Red Cross workers were rushed from Washington to the stricken areas of Arkansas, where 5,000 families, representing 22,000 persons, were homeless.

National guardsmen were out in Oklahoma directing airplanes, motorboats and ambulances along the deluged sections of the Arkansas and Red river bottoms.

and ripping up 150 yards of rails.

Officials of the Mansfield Telephone company said damage to their lines was comparatively slight, with about 25 poles reported down in Adario and Shiloh communities.

D. E. Weidner, 42 Pearl avenue, reported to Sheriff E. P. Long that his car crashed into a pole across Bowman street road about 10 p. m. Saturday, damaging the front of his automobile.

Higher temperatures forecast for tonight and Tuesday were expected to loosen the ice and permit repairing of the damage. Although it will be cloudy, no rain or snow was predicted by the weather bureau.

The temperature in Mansfield remained below freezing all day Sunday, and dropped to 13 degrees above zero last night. Precipitation measured nearly an inch with three-fourths of an inch of snow recorded by Observer Enos Sprunger.

THREE PARENTS LAND IN COURT

Two Fined, Third Ordered Out of County For Failure to Send Children to School.

Cited on charges of failing to send their children to high school, three Mansfield and Washington township parents today had been fined or given a workhouse sentence in common pleas and juvenile courts.

Arraigned before Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court, Mrs. Gladys Cubbage, 15 North Benton street, pleaded guilty and was given a six month suspended sentence in the Toledo workhouse. She was told to leave the county within a week and to stay out for three years.

Judge Anderson said the woman had repeatedly refused to send her 14-year-old daughter to school and had been haled into court on two other occasions, once on a delinquency charge and another time for attempting to obtain relief as a non-resident of the county.

Pleading guilty before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Sauder, R. D. 5, Mansfield, were fined $10 and costs each for failure to keep their 16-year-old daughter in school. The fines were suspended on the condition that the girl be sent to school immediately.

PRESENT FLAGS TO SHELBY HIGH

SHELBY—Two American flags were presented today to Shelby high school by the Daughters of Union Veterans during a special auditorium program.

The flags were accepted in behalf of the school by Superintendent C. G. Keck. The ministerial program announced for today will be held at the auditorium Feb. 28, when Rev. W. W. Ralph, pastor of the First Methodist church, will give the address.

A Farmer's Diary

Feb. 20.

LAST night the wind changed to the northwest, a heavy gale, with rain, sleet and snow. This morning dawned with a murky sky — the distant hills tinged with blue, while nearer woodlands held a darker note of color.

The dog came up the path. I saw him slide on one side, then the other and after many slips and much skillful balancing he reached the sheltered porch and felt the satisfaction of firmer footing. The chickens as they hurried out the door with flopping wings, reached the slippery uncertain feeding ground. Some slid on their tails, others upon their sides or had legs stretched wide, with body like a boat upon the ice.

The neighboring roofs are smooth and shiny with icicles hanging in a fringe below the eaves. The many wires along the highway look like glistening translucent ropes as they sag between the poles.

The grass and weeds that stood unent all winter are a mass of stiff and brittle glassy forms. The shrubs by porch and hedge crackle, crash and splinter as the wind blows in fitful gusts against their heavy-burdened branches.

The larger trees have every tiny twig sheathed in ice. It makes the woods a place of fairy-like beauty—yet pleasing as the sight may be today, we know that nuts, acorns, all woodland harvests, all cultivated orchard trees, stand quivering in the balance. We may not have a crop of fruit next year.

DECISION DUE

Final Court Verdict Expected Today In Wright Case.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—The question of whether Paul A. A. Wright, who killed his wife and friend, John Kimmel, now is sane comes up for final court decision today.

Wright was convicted of manslaughter but the same jury held that he was temporarily insane at the time of the double killing, Nov. 9. Under California law, he thus avoided imprisonment for manslaughter.

GRADE SCHOOLS OFF HALF DAY

SHELBY — Washington birthday will only mean a half holiday for Shelby elementary school students Tuesday, C. G. Keck, superintendent of schools, said today. Classes will be dismissed at noon.

High school students will be given a full day vacation because of the Martha Washington tea to be held by the Senior class in the auditorium.

TAPPAN DIRECTORS MEET

Directors of the Tappan Stove company met today at the company plant, Wayne street, for the annual meeting. Annual reports were to be given and officers elected.

Common Sense About Constipation

If you knew that your constipation was caused by something left out of your food, wouldn't it be just common sense to put that something back?

Your trouble may be caused by nothing more than this. For the most common kind of constipation is due to lack of "bulk" in the bowels—you need some food that passes on through the stomach without being digested. Kellogg's All-Bran supplies this. It gives the bowels the bulky mass they need to work properly. And All-Bran also gives them the intestinal-tonic, vitamin B_1, which helps restore their tone.

Eat All-Bran as a cereal or baked in muffins. But however you eat it, be sure you get some every day. And drink plenty of water. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

GIVE PROGRAM

Woodland School Students Present Playlet.

Pupils of the sixth grade, Woodland school, staged their observance of the Washington-Lincoln month with a program this afternoon which was attended by other members of the school and mothers of sixth grade students.

An original playlet, "History Comes To Life," which was written by sixth grade pupils, was presented, with C. A. Divelbiss, principal of the school, directing.

Special musical numbers were given by sixth grade students. Robert Soulen and Miriam Hugo played "America" as a violin duet, with Marylin Larson at the piano; Connie Roelof and Betty Pugh played "America the Beautiful" as a piano duet, and Jane Gibbs played "Star Spangled Banner" on her accordion.

Other students who took part in the play were Mary Albro, Dorothy Arlin, John Colby, Eleanor Doolittle, Patsy Hecht, Mary Lou Kubic, Douglas Myers, Frances Perry, Maxine Yingling and Zaleen Burkhart.

GO TO CANTON

Mansfielders to Hear Address by Congressman Friday.

A number of Mansfielders are expected to go to Canton Friday night to hear an address by Congressman Gomer Smith from the fifth district of Oklahoma.

Smith will speak at 8:00 p. m. in the City Auditorium, on "Business Recovery the American Way." He is nationally known as an orator and is a former attorney for the American Federation of Labor and the Farmer's Union. The address is open to the public and is being sponsored by the General Recovery committee of Canton.

EX-MANSFIELDER DIES

Funeral services were held Saturday in Brookfield, Mo., for Carl Kauffman, 40 former Mansfield resident, who died at his home there Thursday. Burial was made in Brookfield. Kauffman left Mansfield about a year ago. He was formerly employed at the Tappan Stove company here.

POULSON GAVE ORDER TO HIDE, BRADLEY SAYS

his 1935 income tax return. It showed an entry of $3,374 for money received from "F. W. Poulson," and another of $400 received from "Canning and Harmon," Cleveland motor dealers through whom Bradley said he obtained his automobile.

A telegram bearing the name "Paul H. Davey," that of the governor's brother, was placed in the record. Dated Dec. 5, 1934, it referred to an appointment "probably tomorrow in Cleveland." Bradley said this concerned a meeting in the Statler hotel at which "they" gave him $500 and he signed a contract with Poulson never to sue Governor Davey, the Davey Tree Expert company or the Davey Compressor company.

As other letters and papers were introduced, Metzenbaum called attention to the fact that Bradley's letters did not appear to be carbon copies, as Bradley had said they were.

Letters "Copied."

Bradley replied that "probably" the original carbons had been mutilated, so he had made copies. He insisted that such letters actually had been sent, and informed Metzenbaum that his testimony in Cleveland last Thursday, when he reported the automobile "deals," had been made subject to revision on the basis of his documents.

Metzenbaum said the record showed this to be true.

Then Bradley produced a letter from himself to Poulson, dated March 14, 1935, suggesting that he could get a large state contract for concrete pipe, on which a Detroit concern would pay him $50,000 commission.

He said he told Poulson that if he could make this deal, he would release Poulson from any other obligations.

He declined to name the Detroit firm, saying it might involve a "dear friend." Metzenbaum said the committee would not delve into this matter at once, as more than 40 papers were involved.

Bradley then swung into a discussion of Chairman Poulson's injury in an automobile accident in Summit county, in September, 1935.

Reveals Telegram.

He showed a telegram, bearing the words, "Democratic state headquarters," addressed to Bradley at St. Paris, O., stating:

"Poulson hurt in accident. Probably arrived in Columbus Friday, September 13."

Bradley testified he usually was paid on the 12th of the month and that this was to apprise him of a delay.

He added that Poulson told him later he had more than $4,000 in cash on his person at the time of the accident but that $4,000 was all he go back.

The committee previously examined several former Summit county peace officers concerning Poulson's accident and rumors concerning money the chairman had before and after the wreck.

After this bit of testimony from Bradley, the committee today took up audits of the state highway department automobile purchases.

These records which Bradley said were photostats of the originals, showed $1,800,000 in motor purchases in 1935, but the committee did not go into a breakdown of brands and models.

Bradley said the records would show about $500,000 worth of business went to General Motors Corp., and $300,000 to Chrysler Motors.

Sen. Verner E. Metcalf (R-Washington), a committeeman, interrupted the proceedings to demand that the witness be heid as long as the committee wanted him, without regard to a habeas corpus hearing scheduled for 3 p. m. today on Governor Davey's charge of perjury against Bradley.

"The governor is deliberately and premeditatedly trying to break up this hearing," said Metcalf. "Whether this witness is truthful or not, it is none of his business."

He declared the governor "would like to have the public believe we are 'Hitlerites' and Stalinites.'"

Metcalf said, "this witness, by his own testimony, was right down in the muck and mire with Poulson and the governor of Ohio," and suggested that the committee follow the matter into court to "force" the governor to tell "his story."

Metzenbaum said Bruce H. Seabright, Wheeling, W. Va., automobile dealer designated by Bradley as the "contact man" for General Motors corporation, was in the city and the committee hoped to question him late today.

C. J. Harmon of the Cleveland firm of Canning and Harmon, also has been subpoenaed, Metzenbaum said.

Bradley has asserted that he was given an automobile through Canning and Harmon because of his efforts to obtain state business for the Chrysler Motor Car corporation.

Police Chief Ready.

At East Cleveland, Police Chief L. G. Corlett said he would come here today to take Bradley into custody after the hearing.

Bradley testified last week that payments he said were made to him by Poulson represented "commissions" on sales which General Motors corporation and the Chrysler Motor Car corporation made to the state and which he helped arrange.

Governor Davey, terming the statements "slanderous falsehoods," signed the perjury warrant in East Cleveland Saturday.

Judge Adds Up Fines, Subtracts, Couple Pays $73

It was a case of addition and subtraction when two members of the Ohio Brokerage company, 11 North Main street, were arraigned in municipal court for violation of the state second hand dealers code.

The addition came in when David and Sadie Ellison, charged with failure to keep a record of their purchases and a description of articles exchanged in connection with their brokerage business, pleaded guilty and were fined $500 each, making a total of $1,000.

Ellison then pleaded guilty to the sale of a watch within 30 days from the date of its purchase in violation of another section of the code, for which he was assessed $500. That boosted the total to $1,500.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch then started the subtraction. On the condition of good behavior he told Ellison that he would suspend $975 on both charges and from Mrs. Ellison's fine he suspended $475 on condition of good behavior.

The result—the Ellison's paid $50 and the costs of $23.40.

STATE WORKERS HANDLE DAVEY PETITIONS HERE

Line Up Signatures In Drive to 'Draft' Governor For Third Term.

State employes in Mansfield had been enlisted today in the campaign to "draft" Governor Martin L. Davey for a third term, and a number of petitions were being circulated in the city in the governor's behalf.

While E. B. Kallmerten, chairman of the county Democratic executive committee, said he had not received any petitions, he added that state employes in the city were circulating them. Kallmerten was named last week to a seven-member committee in the state to handle the drive for a third term for Davey.

Space for 50 Names.

The petitions, distributed by Ferd M. Pickens, Columbus, business manager for the state division of aid for the aged, have space for 50 names and are to be returned to Pickens by March 5.

A petition carried by M. W. Conley, manager of the Mansfield division of the aid for the aged, bore 38 of the required 50 names today. The signatures had been obtained in Mansfield.

In his letter to state employes, Pickens said "Gov. Davey has proven beyond any doubt his complete possession of intelligence, sympathetic understanding and courage, and in every sense of the word is a true business man. Above all these fine characteristics, he is a proven friend."

Sensations In Europe Leave U. S. Policies Unchanged

CAPITAL NOT SURPRISED BY HITLER'S TONE

Dodd's Reports Believed to Have Fixed Nazi Ambitions Beyond Current Goals.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—United States foreign policy, based primarily on low-tariff economies and "good neighbor" relationships but dominated just now by a big navy program, stands unchanged today by spectacular European political events. Officials did not care to comment beyond that on the big diplomatic week-end.

Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's restatement of Nazi expansion aims should not, however, have surprised the state department in view of reports understood to have been submitted by William E. Dodd before he resigned as United States ambassador to Germany.

Predicts Greater Ambitions.

Dodd's reports, possibly discounted by the state department because of his anti-Nazi sympathies, are believed to have fixed the limits of Hitler's European ambitions considerably beyond the scope of Der Fuehrer's address yesterday to the reichstag in Berlin.

Dodd's appraisal of German aims became public today through a member of the house foreign affairs committee before which the former ambassador to Germany appeared in secret session. The member, who requested that his name not be revealed, told the United Press that Dodd had described a plan by which Germany and Italy plan to carve out a new "holy Roman empire" on the continent and in North Africa.

Dodd was quoted as having said he had seen maps in Berlin outlining the territories involved and purportedly including the Netherlands, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia and the Polish corridor for Germany in addition to Austria, where Nazi influence now is being exerted with unprecedented force. Italy was described as seeking a hand-hold in Egypt, Palestine, Spain and Spanish Morocco, which across from Great Britain's Gibraltar.

Control Taught Pupils.

He was quoted as saying that German school children are being taught that it is Germany's destiny to control the central European nations by right of blood, tradition and heritage.

With powerful fortifications in southern Spain and Spanish Morocco, Dodd pointed out, Italy could practically nullify Britain's position at Gibraltar. He said, however, that Mussolini will not be satisfied with this and will move towards domination of Egypt and Palestine. If this venture proves successful, Dodd testified, Italy then will have accomplished her long-cherished ambition for control of the Mediterranean and be in a position to sever the "life-line" of the British empire in event of war.

Ted Lewis Revue Gives Four Shows Here Tomorrow

Ted Lewis, an institution in the American theater, will doff his battered high hat tomorrow on the stage of the Madison theater where he and his company of 35 entertainers will present four shows during a one-day engagement.

The show, which has been on tour of American cities and towns to rthe last four months, is noted for its array of pretty girls and jokesters.

Lewis is one of the few survivors on the stage of the school of singing comedians which fathered Al Jolson, George Jessel and Eddie Cantor. The others have turned to pictures or radio.

While Lewis plays Ohio cities every few years, he has not been in Mansfield for many years. His engagement at the Palace in Cleveland proved one of the outstanding box office events of the season, for the comedian has retained his hold on the affections of the public over a period of years.

One of the featured performers with the revue is "Snowball" Whittier, the comedian's "shufflin' shadow." Heading the musicians is Lewiss famous Main Street band, noted for its Fourth of July parade music.

The first show tomorrow is scheduled for 1 p. m.

So he had a number made to send to Mansfield friends. Two hours later as he passed the same place he found the hawker selling postcards of "tourists in Mexico," and found that it was his picture. He couldn't make up his mind whether to be flattered or angry.

Senior High school auditorium has been so busy lately that keeping its booking straight is almost a full time job, according to E. L. Heasley, dramatic instructor on the Senior High staff. As Mansfield's only theater auditorium that is not tied up with regular shows, it is constantly in demand as a meeting place for civic affairs, concerts and home talent shows. At present the Red Masque club of the school is rehearsing two and three nights a week for its forthcoming production, the band rehearsés one night each week, the Rotary and University clubs have used it for the past three Monday nights, and various outside groups have asked for more dates than there are open. Which emphasizes once again Mansfield's need for a municipal public auditorium.

CUMMINGS ASKS 27 NEW JUDGES

Attorney General Points to Need For Up-to-Date U. S. Judicial System.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Attorney General Homer S. Cummings has asked creation of 27 additional judgeships to give the nation a "rapidly functioning and up-to-date judicial system."

"Everyone, including the man in the street, realizes," Cummings told a senate judiciary subcommittee, "that delay in the administration of justice is the outstanding defect in our judicial system.

"Many people submit to injustice rather than to suffer the cost and uncertainty of long judicial processes," he said.

The subcommittee is considering a bill to provide for the appointment of additional judges in accordance with the recommendation of Cummings and the judicial conference, comprised of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the supreme court and senior circuit judges.

The attorney general said that "we have been running a backlog of 50,000 undisposed of cases in the federal judiciary."

On June 30, 1937, Cummings said, there were 51,629 pending cases, not including bankruptcy actions which would boost the total to 54,802.

"The growth of business of the courts has outstripped the occasional increases that we have made in the number of judges from time to time," Cummings said.

DUCHESS OF WINDSOR FIRST ON LIST OF 'BEST DRESSED' AGAIN

By SYLVIA CROSBY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—The Duchess of Windsor, for the second consecutive year, was named today the world's best-dressed woman in a poll of the most famous dressmakers of Paris.

The Baltimore woman, who in June celebrates the first anniversary of her marriage to former King Edward, was the unanimous choice for head of a list of 10 internationally known socialites, who were chosen not for beauty alone but for taste and individuality.

The rankings were:

1. The Duchess of Windsor.
2. The Duchess of Kent.
3. Begum Aga Khan.
4. Baronne Leo D'Erlanger.
5. Hon. Mrs. Reginald Fellowes.
6. Baroness Eugene De Rothschild.
7. Mrs. Harrison Williams.
8. Mrs. Millicent Rogers Balcom.
9. Countess Barbara Von Haughwitz-Reventlow.
10. Lady Louis Mountbatten.

The Duchess of Windsor celebrated her second triumph by appearing at the farewell reception for American Ambassador William C. Bullitt in a simple white crepe, square necked and barely decollette gown. It barely skimmed the floor with straight paneled folds.

The dress was trimmed with only two bands of gold embroidery, which started at the waistline and came down in a curve over her hips.

She wore a tiara of diamonds and emeralds, the most recent gift of the duke. A thin strand of diamonds and emeralds at her throat completed the costume.

"Wallis blue" is not her favorite color. She prefers black for afternoon and white for evening.

Marina, Duchess of Kent, is now in mourning for her father, the late Prince Nicolas, of Greece, and probably will not be seen frequently this year at fashionable events. Black, however, is one of her favorite colors and her clothes are always simply tailored, even for evening. She likes to offset this simplicity with brilliant accessories, like jeweled handbags and she favors hats that are large and shallow crowned.

Begum Aga Kahn, the former French milliner, who was married to the wealthy Indian prince, moves up from sixth place which she was accorded last year, to third place, chiefly because of the jewels which set off her clothes.

LAUDS PATRIOTS

Pastor Cites Need of Leaders With Sympathetic Hearts.

George Washington and Abraham Lincoln were great benefactors because they loved liberty and their hearts were tund to the needs of humanity, Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, said last night in a patriotic sermon at the church.

"In these days when democracy and liberty are threatened, we have greater need than ever of leaders with the sympathetic hearts of Washington and Lincoln," Rev. Swoyer said.

With talk of war heard on every side, the United States must follow Washington's advice to stay away from foreign entangling alliances with foreign countries if we are to avoid war and possible loss of its democracy, he asserted.

Music for the service was provided by a special augmented chorus of 24 women and 20 men under the direction of Mrs. Edith Fletcher Jameson. Mrs. Clayson Bell was the organist.

RELIEF BILL TO FORCE DECISION IN CONTROVERSY

Agreement to Take Up New WPA Fund Measure Would Doom Lynch Legislation.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Opposition to shelving the controversial anti-lynching bill dwindled in the face of administration requests for prompt senate approval of the $250,000,000 emergency relief fund.

A formal agreement to take up the relief bill shortly after noon, leaders said, undoubtedly would doom the anti-lynching measure for the remainder of the session.

Southern members have been conducting a filibuster against it since Jan. 6, thereby blocking virtually all other legislation.

There were scattered efforts to increase the special relief appropriation. Senator Bone (D-Wash), for example, wanted to boost it to $400,000,000. Some senators who favored a higher figure said, however, they preferred to recommend another emergency fund later in the spring.

Opposes Increase.

Chairman Byrnes (D-SC) of a special relief committee opposed any increase in the appropriation. He cited figures from the budget bureau to show that, counting the $250,000,000, the government will have spent more than $4,000,000,000 on relief and allied projects in the fiscal year ending next June 30.

That total, he explained, includes farm benefit payments and such activities as the civilian conservation corps in addition to outright relief. It does not represent any federal loans.

The social security board reported that actual relief outlays by federal, state and local governments in 1937 were $2,333,314,000, exclusive of administrative costs. This was a decrease of about $285,000,000 from the 1936 total.

Afterr disposing of the relief measure, the senate probably will take up the government reorganization bill advocated by President Roosevelt. Byrnes predicted its passage after "two or three days" of debate.

While the house continues consideration of the regular appropriation bills, its labor committee will decide this week whether to modify the administration's wage-hour bill. The house refused to vote on it last fall.

DIES AT HOME

Mrs. May Roberts Stricken at 56 After Lingering Illness.

Mrs. May Roberts, 56, of 401 Wayne street, died at her home Sunday following a lingering illness. A resident of Mansfield 25 years, Mrs. Roberts was born in Monroe county, Feb. 5, 1882.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

"No Man Understands."

WITH THE emergency as the excuse, in Mr. Roosevelt's first term a great many immense, soggy and hastily thrown together measures were passed by congress almost without debate and with a complete lack of understanding.

Some, like the NRA and the AAA, quickly bogged down and were eventually killed by the court—not, however, before they had cost the nation great sums of money and put upon the pay rolls many thousands of jobholders who still stick there. Others, such as the incredibly complicated Social Security act, remain upon the statute books and are still being operated in a fog so thick that already there has been created a situation fraught with considerable danger.

IT WOULD seem that the unhappy results of these blind enactments of the first term would have made it impossible to do the same sort of thing again. Yet, in the new farm bill, signed by Mr. Roosevelt a few hours after it reached his desk, there has been enacted by congress, wholly without comprehension, a law which, in the extreme radical steps it takes, goes beyond all previous legislative proposals, and which in cost is expected to run as high as a billion and a half dollars a year. Passed—and signed—without even knowing where the money is to come from, efforts are now being made to evolve some form of process tax to supply the funds from which the farmers are to be paid for the sacrifice of their freedom and the great job-holding machine essential to the operation of the law financed.

THE POLITICAL potentialities as well as the unprecedented power conferred upon the Secretary of Agriculture in this law are greater than anything heretofore conceived and it is a shocking thing that it should have been passed without either congressional or popular understanding, and in spite of the protests and warnings from at least one of the strongest of the farm organizations. The explanation lies in the desire of the administration to continue its subsidies to the farmers, the pressure of the farm lobby at Washington, the inertia of some members of congress and the cowardice of others who want to "stand well" with either the farmers or the administration.

THE CHARGE has been made that the president had not read the bill when he approved it and does not know what is in it, which, considering it contains approximately 60,000 words, is not surprising. Certain it is that there are not five men in congress who have read it or know what it is really about. The fact was vividly pictured by Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, who, opposing its passage, vehemently declared on the floor, "We jump this way and we jump that way and we jump up and down in this bill until we are in a maze of contradictions which no living soul can unravel and no living soul can tell the significance. But we know that no man here understands this bill, and nearly every man who has spoken upon it insists that he does not understand it."

IN THIS, Senator Johnson simply stated the truth. There was not a man in the senate who understood the bill or who even claimed to understand it. Yet, concededly, it was the most vital measure which has come before congress in years, the most far-reaching and elaborate, extending compulsory crop control and regimentation to limits not heretofore suggested and which justify the comparison with the early Nazi regimentation and control of industry. Already the huge propaganda machine of the Agriculture department is in high gear, explaining the benign purpose and beneficent provisions of the new law.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Dopey, brightest star in that animated constellation, "Snow White And The Seven Dwarfs," had his ups and downs just like any one else before film fame came to him.

In fact, Dopey's trial flights were mostly fizzles. It took much grooming and revamping to bring out that personality which is winning him a niche in Hollywood's hall of immortals.

Nearly three years ago, Walt Disney's animators started work on Dopey, trying to give him the combined character of four comics: Harry Langdon, Stan Laurel, Buster Keaton and Harpo Marx.

Here's how Dopey was born:

DOPEY IN 1935 was no great shakes as a comedian but he had good stuff in him — the best qualities of four proved laugh-provokers.

EARLY IN 1936, Dopey was working in this garb and trying his hand at pantomine. It was rough sledding, however. Animators said he wasn't "cute" enough.

DOPEY THE STAR, is described around the studio as "three heads nigh, with slant blue eyes, a pug nose, large ears that react to his moods, and misfit clothes that droop on his runty, impish body." The audience adjective is "adorable."

Selects Corbett As Boxing's No. 1

Gould Says One-time San Francisco Bank Clerk Wielded Great Influence Along Two Lines of Fistic Development.

This is the first of a series of six articles in which Alan Gould, sports editor of the Associated Press, lists members of sport's "hall of fame."

By ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor.

BOXING'S "Hall of Fame" echoes with arguments, most of which it is quite impossible to settle. The many factors involved, for which few yardsticks of measurement or comparison are available, make any fistic honor roll a matter of conjecture. We have consulted the oracles, shadow-boxed with the records.

Our top ten is confined to the Marquis of Queensbury era. Obviously, to go back to the old bare knuckle days, to compare Tom Sayers, Richard Heenan, John Morrisey, the great Bendigo and Jem Mace with the stalwarts of the gloved fist period, would merely invite further trouble. Our research, therefore, has concentrated upon fistic history of the last half-century, with a bow of recognition only to two heroes who spanned the transitional period, John L. Sullivan and Jack McAuliffe.

Sullivan belongs close to the top, not because he was the last of the great bare-knuckle belligerents but because the Boston Strong Boy became an American legend. He linked the fugitive days of pugilism with the reform period. He became himself an advocate of piety and died a symbol of solid citizenship, far removed from but still best remembered for the days when he offered, from the stage, "to lick any man in the house."

McAuliffe, who only recently joined Sullivan in Fistiana's Valhalla, was the first of a great line of American lightweights. Their ranks alone challenge the heavyweight monopoly in "Hall of Fame" debate. McAuliffe retired undefeated in 1893 after nine years as undisputed lightweight champion. He met and conquered all challengers.

Fitzsimmons' Case.

Only after weighing the evidence do we conclude that Gentleman Jim Corbett rates the No. 1 spot in our honor roll in preference to Ruby Robert Fitzsimmons. Strictly on the competitive side, we favor Fitz. He was middleweight champion (at 158 pounds) six years before he knocked out Corbett in 1897. He won the light heavyweight title six years afterward. He was active in the ring for nearly 30 years, was 47 years old when he finally quit, and in every respect was a physical marvel as well as one of the greatest punchers of all time.

Corbett's original claim to fame rests, of course, upon his knockout of Sullivan in 1892—an exploit for which many an old Sullivan idolater never forgave him—but the one-time San Francisco bank clerk wielded great influence along two lines of fistic development.

By showing what clean living could do, Corbett helped raise standards of competition as well as conduct in pugilistic circles. His career not only helped lift the game from disreputable atmosphere but his boxing skill stimulated its scientific side.

Two Other 'Successes.'

Two other studies in fistic success, Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, are included in our list. No matter how you think they would have fared in combat with the immortal Big Three or, for that matter, with Jim Jeffries or Jack Johnson, they must be conceded to be the last of the "great heavyweights." Jack and Gene drew the two biggest gates in prize-fight history. Dempsey's purses aggregated nearly $3,000,000 from 1919 to 1927. Tunney collected the biggest individual end, $990,000, for the famous "battle of the long count" and retired a millionaire in 1928.

Both fought their way to the top by the hard route. Dempsey as a fiery youth with dynamite in either fist. Tunney as a ring student who took Corbett for his model.

The man who had most to do with helping Tunney and Dempsey to make ring history as well as fantastic profits—Tex Rickard—certainly belongs in our fistic "Hall of Fame." The old Klondike gambler began his career as a promoter in 1906, at Goldfield, Nev. He bid $101,000 for the Jeffries-Johnson heavyweight match which he promoted at Reno in 1910. Coming East he took over the old Madison Square Garden put boxing on its feet as a sporting business, and brought the "best people" back to the ringside.

Never a Champion.

Two great lightweights, Joe Gans and Benny Leonard, rate high on our honor list. Champion from 1901 to 1907, when he yielded to Battling Nelson and to the ravages of illness, Gans was a model of fistic skill. Leonard, who retired undefeated in 1924, came closest among all succeeding lightweights to the Gans standard. Benny outboxed and outfought a formidable class of rivals.

The fighter who rounds out our top ten Sam Langford, never held a title but few will dispute the Boston "Tar Baby's" claim to greatness. He is considered by many competent judges the hardest hitter of all heavyweights with the possible exception of Fitzsimmons. His career covered 21 years but he was in his prime in the days when Jack Johnson was a fugitive champion and thereby a victim of the handicaps associated with the fistic fortunes or misfortunes of his race.

It is a commentary upon the heavyweight champions of the decade since Tunney's retirement that not one comes close to a place on the honor roll save perhaps for Jim Braddock, on the basis of courage alone. Max Schmeling dissipated the extravagant Hall of Fame build-up for Joe Louis.

Honorable mention at least belongs to Tommy Ryan and Mickey Walker, both of whom stood welter and middleweight champions in widely separated eras, Packey McFarland an unknown master of ringcraft in pre-war days, Mike and Tommy Gibbons, colorful fighters of the [illegible] and featherweight ranks in 1900's, George Dixon and Joe Walcott two wonderful champions of the old days, who [illegible] most of the modern little follows who topped the [illegible] and lightweight ranks before or [illegible]

LARGE CROWD LOOMS FOR LOUIS' SCRAP WITH MANN.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(INS Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—It probably only goes to prove that not all the nutmegs in Connecticut grow on trees, but, anyhow, $12,000 worth of highly imbued citizens are coming into town on special trains from New Haven and surrounding communities for what purports to be a bull pen, practice pitch and warm-over of the heavyweight championship, two nights hence, between Champion Joe Louis and Challenger Nahtan Mann.

More interesting still is the fact that the promoters today lay claim to an "advance" of $50,000, with the possibility that they'll do twice that amount through the windows by Wednesday. And more confusing than all other developments is that dealing with the odds on Louis, which are quoted at the preposterous price of 5 and 1 and are said to be soaring.

In other words, New York, always in there leading with its visage, is obviously getting ready to be a party to one of two things: it's apparently to witness a murder—or a miracle.

Nothing except the latter could adequately describe a victory for Mann, judging by the way this town's taking it. Nobody, according to the odds, is giving him a chance and in a different sense, that seems to go for his own camp. Anyhow, the word from down in Summit, N. J., is that they've taken a first rate street corner fighter and are trying to make him cute.

Normally, Nathan's cute like the average concrete mixer and, if he'll forget all that blarney when he gets in there which doubtless he promptly will, he's better, much better, than any 5-1 ever given or asked.

He's a good left-hooker, but not as good as Louis. He pitches a fair right, but Louis tops him there, too. He can box a bit and is reasonably fast, but Louis is better and faster.

Johnsville Pulls Upset

EDISON—Johnsville accounted for the biggest upset in Morrow county basketball history here Saturday night when it defeated the previous season's favorite Mt. Gilead, 21 to 17. Leading 15 to 2 at the half, the scrappy Johnnies coasted to victory.

There was never any doubt about the outcome of the contest. Johnsville was beaten twice by Mt. Gilead during the regular season and was not accorded a chance against the Indians. Edison defeated Marengo in the other game Saturday.

CUNNINGHAM, ATHLETIC SUPPLY STAR, IS WELL REMEMBERED IN MANSFIELD

It has been several years since "Cookie" Cunningham earned an enviable reuptation on the grid and court at Mt. Vernon high school, but Mansfield fans well remember him.

Cunningham, who will lead the crack Athletic Supplies of Columbus to Mansfield high school Wednesday for a game with the City Class A league leaders, Yuncker Sports, is probably the greatest athlete ever developed at the Knox county school.

Cunningham's great performances on both the grid and court were responsible for many victories over Mansfield teams in the period right after the war.

The Mt. Vernon boy later won additional fame in both sports at Ohio State, and has performed in professional basketball since his graduation.

Included among the pro teams with which Cunningham performed, were the Cleveland Rosenblums, Toledo Redmen and New York Celtics.

Cunningham heads one of the strongest pro teams in the country in the Supplies, who were members of the National Pro league until lack of attendance at home games forced them to withdraw recently.

A preliminary game between the Westinghouse and Elks' clubs of the City league was announced today by President Chet Swank.

Claybourn, Barenoff Collide at Armory

TONIGHT'S mat card at the Armory was completed this afternoon. The latest addition is a match between veteran Spike Ashby of Chicago and Francis Steele, motor-cop from Plymouth.

Schultz

The card is topped by the meeting of two heavyweights, Gentleman Jack Claybourn and Ivan Barenoff. The latter hails from Russia and is regarded as the most rugged wrestler now showing in midwestern rings.

Claybourn, is, in mat style, as far apart from Barenoff as the poles. He is a clean, scientific grappler, who takes a lot of punishment before he starts dealing out anything bordering on rough treatment to his rivals.

Semi-final warfare tonight should prove unusually dynamic. Dutch Schultz, who is anything but elegant on the pad, where his continental etiquette changes to local skullduggery, will oppose the little Irish Hercules, Ray Ryan. The latter hails from Hoboken, N. J., and is also a capable "nobpolisher."

Tonight will be "Ladies Night" and women, accompanied by escorts, will be admitted free.

Putting together scores of 1049, 1094 and 1036, Doug Miller's Oldsmobiles rolled up a brilliant 3179 total to take a pair of games from Stone's Grills in a Northern Ohio Traveling league match at Sandusky Sunday.

Although rolling a 1049 in the first game, the Motors dropped the decision by 11 pins. They took the next two games in easy fashion, however.

Big Young, Sonny Meder and Art Hilborn paced the Oldsmobiles with big 600,s. Miss the 700 mark by only nine pins, Young accounted for games of 243, 224 and 224, and Meder added tilts of 220, 245 and 223 for a 688. Hilborn accounted for a 657, which included games of 217, 233 and 207.

L. Smith, with a 673, and Chapman, who shot a 633, led the Sandusky team.

Ontario, Lexington Advance In County Cage Tournament

Warriors, Victors Over Madison, Tackle Shiloh In Top Game On Thursday's Program; Minutemen Edge Plymouth.

By CHARLES MARTIN

ONTARIO'S defending champions and the Minutemen of Lexington joined the list of Richland county high school basketball quintets awaiting the gun for the second round of the county tournament Thursday at Mansfield high.

While the eight aggregations prepared for the Thursday battles, the losers of the opening round games, Madison and Plymouth, were aiming to make amends for their elimination from the championship bracket in consolation affairs at Lexington Friday night.

Two of the pre-tourney favorites fell by the wayside Saturday night on the Mansfield hardwood before a near-capacity crowd.

Madison, never before defeated in an opening round game, bowed to the Warriors of Ontario, 26 to 17, in the second game. In the opener, Lexington broke loose with a thrilling story book finish to edge an inspired Plymouth aggregation, 25 to 20.

Four Games Thursday.

Second round games in the championship bracket Thursday put Adario against Lexington in the opening game at 6:30 p. m.; Ontario against Shiloh's Twin-Valley league champions; dangerous Butler Bulldogs against Bellville and Lucas against Union.

Consolation games Friday will send the Madison Rams against Plymouth at 8 p. m., and the loser of the Ontario-Shiloh tilt against the loser of the Adario-Lexington affair.

Richland county basketball adherents witnessed plenty of thrills in the two melees Saturday.

Lexington, trailing, 14 to 8, at the half, located the bucket in the last half to come through with a well-earned victory.

Plymouth, playing the role of the underdog, made things interesting for the Minutemen. The Tigers set Lexington down without a goal in the opening period, but the Minutemen came back after the intermission determined to win.

Stages Rally To Win.

Trailing, 5 to 2, in the opening stanza, Lexington was unable to throttle the inspired Plymouth cagers until late in the third period. Going into the second half trailing by six points, Coach Johnny Rees' charges suddenly came to life, but were only able to cut Plymouth's lead by one point.

The clubs went into the final chapter with Plymouth hanging onto an 18 to 13 advantage. And then Lexington went to work. The Minutemen dropped in 10 points while holding Plymouth scoreless to take a 23 to 18 lead before Plymouth connected with two foul shots, the points they made in the last period.

Huguenard set the individual pace with nine points, and Bud Van Wagner led the losers with eight.

Coach Orville Kibler's fast-stepping athletes and the Rams battled on even terms for two periods, but Ontario's last-half defense, coupled with its deadeye shooting, led to Madison's downfall.

The clubs finished the opening quarter with the score deadlocked at 5-all, and then Ontario began rattlin' the backboard and at the half was leading, 12 to 9. From there on in it was all Ontario.

The Warriors limited Madison to seven charity tosses in the second half to win going away. Ontario's defense held the Rams to a single free throw in the third stanza, and the winners were ahead, 16 to 10, going into the final chapter.

Increases Lead.

At the opening of the last frame the defending champions increased their lead to a 20 to 10 count, but Madison still came back and midway in the period had cut the lead to a 20 to 15 advantage. But Prion took two nice passes under the basket and added a trio of fouls to give Ontario a commanding 26 to 17 lead with two minutes to go. And then the Warriors, playing without the services of Matt Hager and Fink, who were ejected on fouls in the last stanza, froze the ball the rest of the way.

Prion dropped in 10 points in the second half to lead the winners, while Hershey was the only Madison player to collect two field goals.

Kayoed Barth Through As Middle

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Carmen Barth, former Olympic champion and a product of Cleveland's Golden Gloves ranks, has made his last fight as a middleweight, it was announced here today by his manager, robust Eddie Mead.

Barth suffered a technical knockout in the seventh round of his championship fight with rugged Freddie Steele of Tacoma, Wash., here Saturday night. Barth's handlers threw in the towel after the youthful Clevelander had been floored five times.

"Barth weighed 171 pounds when we contracted for the fight with Steele," Mead said, "and in making the middleweight limit of 160 pounds he exhausted himself. I'll never permit him to try it again. Although beaten I believe the fight will do Carmen a world of good. His splendid showing against Steele will give him much needed confidence."

Mead attempted to re-sign Barth and Steele for a return bout at catchweights, but the offer was turned down.

The Barth-Steele engagement drew a disappointing crowd of 5,641 fans. Net receipts were approximately $10,900. Steele had been guaranteed $20,000 for his purse.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—(INS)—The Cleveland Barons started home today minus the services of their captain and star goalie, Moe Roberts, and the victims of two straight losses.

The Providence Reds swept down on the Barons last night to win, 5 to 3, and the Philadelphia Ramblers took the touring Clevelanders 1 to 0 the night before. Roberts was hurt early in the first period of the Providence game when he aggravated a former injury.

MARSHALL CINCHES TITLE

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Marshall college today was acclaimed Buckeye conference cage champs following a 22-to-16 victory over Miami. Wooster and Wittenberg were still knotted in the Ohio conference race.

WINS THREE OHIO TITLES

Cleveland Dominates State Bowling Tourney, at Canton.

CANTON—(AP)—Those bowlers from Cleveland headed home today, three state championships all theirs in the state bowling tournament. They missed out on only one title in the contests that ended last night, the all-events crown going to Clyde Potter of Akron for his score of 2,076.

The Cleveland champs were: Samson Ales, which rang up 3,211 in the five-man event; Charles Lausche and Frank Frana, who won the doubles with a record score of 1,494, and Walter Ward, who carried away the singles laurels with 737.

Further honors went to the Cleveland men when, in the last day's bowling, Ed Smith tossed a perfect game of 300. A member of the Samson Ales, he hammered down 12 strikes during his second game.

Lodge Pinmen Hang Up Wins

No. 2 Team Beats Akron, No. 1 Stops Orrville.

Mansfield Moose teams came out on top in lodge traveling matches rolled at the Meder Recreation over the week-end.

Featuring a 1094 score, the No. 2 team cracked out a 2956 total to take a pair of games from Akron. Winnie Cleckner smashed out a 642, which he closed with a 243 game, for the home lodge.

The No. 1 team, led by Harold Lemunyon's 627 and Freddy Willis' 601, pounded down 2838 pins to take two games from Orrville. It had a middle game of 1012.

Led by Red Matthews' 649, the No. 1 team edged Ashland, 2809 to 2773, in a special match at the Meder alleys Sunday. Emmons rolled a big 684 for the visitors and finished with a 276 game.

STOCK MARKET UNRUFFLED BY FOREIGN NEWS

Many Traders Skip Today's Session In View of Tomorrow's Holiday.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market shifted over an exceptionally narrow range today in one of the slowest sessions for many months.

Small advances predominated at the quiet opening, but many of these were relinquished near the second hour.

The market apparently was unruffled by Hitler's speech, the resignation of British foreign secretary Eden and other European happenings. Foreign securities markets were uneven. Bonds and commodities were mixed.

Boardrooms were virtually deserted as many traders skipped today's proceedings in view of tomorrow's holiday when the exchange will be closed.

Market analysts noted the survey of the magazine "Steel" which found slightly better demand in nearly all lines for the metal with prospects total production for February would exceed January despite the shorter month.

Railroad buying, while still restricted pending the interstate commerce commission decision on the plea for higher freight rates, was said to be cropping up here and there.

JURY RECESSED

Settlement of Cases Heads Off Petit Panel's Sessions.

With their sessions headed off at least twice last week by last-minute settlement or postponement of cases set for trial, Richland county petit jurors have been given an indefinite recess, Clerk of Courts Fred R. Zellner said today.

The January term jury, which has yet to hear a case, was scheduled to try a number of damage suits and equity cases last week, but every case, however, was taken off the calendar or continued. Zellner said no cases had been set for trial this week.

NAZIS CHEER HITLER SPEECH

Address Baring Aims to Be First In Europe Centers Attention on Britain.

fect announced further political activities soon.

The resignation of Anthony Eden as British foreign secretary was expected, along with the basis laid in Hitler's speech, to indicate a speedy clarification on the European situation.

Naturally there was no official comment on Eden's resignation—a private British matter. But it was welcomed in political quarters. He was considered an opponent to the authoritarian regimes, and of Germany particularly. He was felt to be one of the most rigid defenders of collective security and the legalistic methods of the league of nations, which Hitler often has described—most recently in his speech yesterday—as an obstacle to peace.

Hence it was felt that Eden's withdrawal was likely to improve the European political situation and the most important task of Eden's successor was seen as that of bringing about rapprochment between democratic and authoritarian countries—and not least in isolating Soviet Russia.

It was felt also that any friendship between Germany and Great Britain would not endanger the "Rome-Berlin" axis of co-operation between Italy and Germany.

Belief was expressed that had Eden resigned a day sooner, Hitler might have been less acid in his comment of the democracies.

Austria and Czechoslovakia were the countries referred to when Hitler spoke of "the defense of the political freedom of race conscious Germans living beyond the frontiers of the reich."

It was said here that Hitler referred only to the 6,500,000 people of Austria and the 3,500,000 Germans in the post-war republic of Czechoslovakia. It was emphasized that he meant only Germans in those two bordering countries—and not the Germans living in the South Tyrol, 250,000 of them, and in the Port of Trieste, taken from Austria and given to Italy after the war.

Trieste gave Austria—and any ally of Austria—an outlet on the Adriatic Sea and thus to the Mediterranean.

Reviews Domestic Affairs.

Hitler began his historic speech with a long review of domestic affairs from the time of the Nazi accession to power. He laughed at reports of disunity; he emphasized Germany's growing power.

"Every individual, every institution in Germany is national socialist. Everyone is determined to defend and protect national socialism to the last breath . . .

"I assure the world of the deep sincere love of peace of the German people. But this love of peace has nothing to do with weak renunciation and cowardice. Those who believe they can attack us with impunity will find an iron resistance and see the German people united.

"There is no doubt I am the authorized leader of the reich."

Turning to the foreign field he demanded colonies—"I say once for all we are unwilling to accept credits or other promises in place of colonies."

He said that Germany had no territorial claims against France and he added that he had no differences with Britain except as regards colonies then he added:

"The only factor poisoning relations is the unbelievable press campaign."

He criticized the League of Nations. Since Italy's withdrawal, he said, Germany no longer thought of ever returning to it—"a body which failed to recognize obvious facts and buried its head in the sand."

Germany acts differently, he said; it recognized the obvious.

At that point he announced that Germany would recognize Japan's conquest of Manchukuo.

Condemns Russia.

He condemned Russia, "the incarnation of the urge to destruction."

He referred but briefly to Austria. He said that an attempt at settlement of differences had been necessary and he expressed sincere gratitude in behalf of the German nation to Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria for having "accepted an invitation in the name of the German nation, whose sons we all are" to compose the disagreements.

"The German nation is not warlike but soldierly. It does not like war but it also does not fear war. . . . I have deep confidence in the German future. What I have created is not an end in itself. The state, the party, the army only serve the people. This living substance eclipses all particular interests. It is my happy duty to cite all my able collaborators. May God help us to avoid overhearing as well as subserviency in order that we may find the right path and not yield to any force or danger. Long live the German reich and nation."

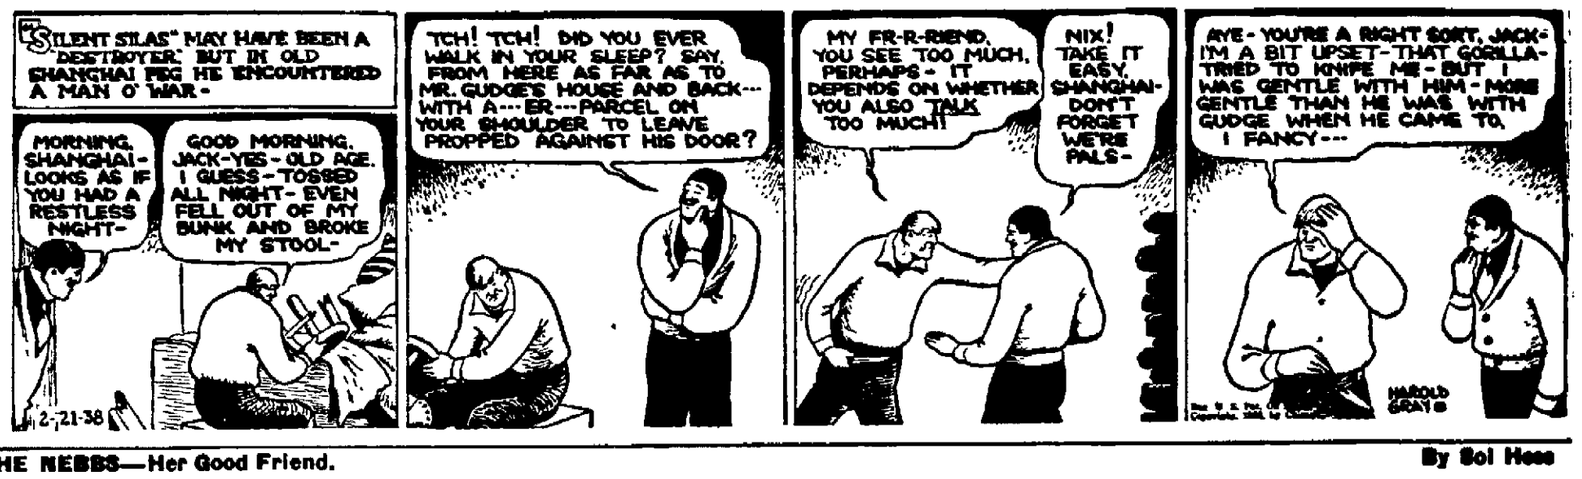
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—After the Brawl Is Over.

By Harold Gray



"SILENT SILAS" MAY HAVE BEEN A "DESTROYER" BUT IN OLD SHANGHAI PEG HE ENCOUNTERED A MAN O' WAR-
MORNING, SHANGHAI- LOOKS AS IF YOU HAD A RESTLESS NIGHT-
GOOD MORNING, JACK-YES- OLD AGE, I GUESS- TOSSED ALL NIGHT- EVEN FELL OUT OF MY BUNK AND BROKE MY STOOL-
2-21-38
TCH! TCH! DID YOU EVER WALK IN YOUR SLEEP? SAY, FROM HERE AS FAR AS TO MR. GUDGE'S HOUSE AND BACK--- WITH A---ER---PARCEL ON YOUR SHOULDER TO LEAVE PROPPED AGAINST HIS DOOR?
MY FR-R-RIEND, YOU SEE TOO MUCH, PERHAPS- IT DEPENDS ON WHETHER YOU ALSO TALK TOO MUCH!
NIX! TAKE IT EASY, SHANGHAI- DON'T FORGET WE'RE PALS-
AYE- YOU'RE A RIGHT SORT, JACK- I'M A BIT UPSET- THAT GORILLA- TRIED TO KNIFE ME- BUT I WAS GENTLE WITH HIM- MORE GENTLE THAN HE WAS WITH GUDGE WHEN HE CAME TO, I FANCY---

THE NEBBS—Her Good Friend.

By Sol Hess

BETTY MOUTES HAS BEEN PLACED UNDER ARREST BY THE CITY DETECTIVE-- IN RESPONSE TO HER PHONE CALL NEBB ARRIVES AT THE POLICE STATION AT THE SAME TIME SHE DOES.
2-21
WHAT'S THE MATTER HERE? WHAT'S ALL THIS ABOUT?
HE HAS ME ARRESTED FOR ROBBERY! I'M ABSOLUTELY INNOCENT, MR NEBB
I'M A POLICE OFFICER DOING MY DUTY. THERE'S A WARRANT OUT FOR HER ARREST
I'M NOT HERE TO DECIDE WHETHER SHE'S GUILTY OR INNOCENT—THE COURT WILL DECIDE THAT. IN THE MEANTIME, I'LL HAVE TO LOCK HER UP UNTIL WE CAN EXTRADITE HER FROM WHERE SHE'S WILLING TO GO BACK!
DON'T LET HIM PUT ME IN JAIL
NO, YOU ARE NOT GOING TO LOCK HER UP! I'LL GET JUDGE NIBLICK TO OPEN COURT AND RELEASE HER ON BOND
JAIL
GO ON, GET HER OUT ON BOND, BUT WHEN THE TIME COMES HAVE HER ON HAND OR I'LL SEE THAT THE BOND IS FORFEITED
I'LL FURNISH THE BOND WE'RE NOT LOCKING UP YOUNG GIRLS IN OUR JAIL HERE... GET ME JUDGE NIBLICK
I WON'T RUN AWAY. I'M INNOCENT!

OUTLINES STAND ON 'ONE-HOUSE' LEGISLATURE

Proponents of New Amendment Declares Present Ohio System 'Unfair.'

EDITOR'S NOTE: The United Press has obtained interviews with two men who offer arguments for and against a proposed one-house legislature in Ohio. Today, Professor Harvey Walker of Ohio State university offers arguments supporting the proposal. Tomorrow, E. J. Bath of the Ohio Farm Bureau will offer rebuttal.

By RICHARD A. BLACKBURN
United Press Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS — Reasoning that it will provide a more representative government and will cure abuses in the present legislative system, Prof. Harvey Walker, Ohio State university, today urged support for the proposed constitutional amendment to establish a one-house legislature in Ohio.

A member of the university political science department, Walker is a leader in the Ohio single house legislature league now circulating initiative petitions to put the question to the electorate by ballot in November.

The amendment would establish a legislature of between 94 and 100 members chosen from single member district with power to create from their own numbers a legislative council of 15 members. The legislature could not recess or adjourn for more than three months and one-fifth of the members could call a special session There could be no sine die adjournment until the end of the legislators' two-year terms

Prof. Walker charged that the present system whereby every county is entitled to at least one member in the house of representatives regardless of population is unfair.

Condition 'Intolerable.'

"Rural control of one house of the legislature in a state which is two-thirds urban is a positive denial of Democratic government," he said. "This condition may have been satisfactory when the state was predominantly agricultural, but under modern conditions it is intolerable

"In a Democracy there is only one interest entitled to representation—that's the people. When there is representation of cowlots and pastures we don't have a Democracy"

He added that under the two-house system with the house of representatives predominantly rural, "35 per cent of the people have the power to block legislation desired by the other 65 per cent"

The opposition he said comes from "vested interests—the legislature, with a vested interest in jobs and patronage and those who have vested interest in representation"

He held that it would be more difficult for lobbyists to secure control because under the proposed system they would have to control a majority of the 94 to 100 members whereas under the existing system he said they can control by dominating a majority of the senate, 19 members In some instances he added domination of the rules committee alone is necessary.

Walker argued that members of a single house legislature who fell under corrupt influences could be more easily exposed and that their votes would be more readily detected as indicating lobby domination

He held it necessary for the legislature to be in more frequent session, anticipating that under such conditions legislation would be handled more promptly and stalemates and deadlocks would be avoided. A higher type man would be drawn into service he said, and with expeditiously managed sessions those who at present feel they cannot serve might be willing to do so The reduced size of the assembly would also give individual members more distinction, he indicated

Freed of Domination.

Under the proposed amendment, he said the legislature would also be freed from domination by the governor who now can limit subjects for legislation during special sessions. He anticipated that such sessions would be infrequent

He suggested that with the legislature in session more frequently members would be better informed on the course of the government's administrative activities. The amendment is so drawn that legislation, committees and investigations can continue for the full two-year terms of the members.

The amendment provides that committees must report for or against every bill referred to them and Walker contended that this would stop the practice of "pigeonholing" without a vote legislation opposed by any powerful group It also would destroy the control exercised over movement on the calendar of legislation by rules and calendar committees, he said He said he thought the proposed system would prevent the jamming through of legislation in closing hours of a session without proper consideration.

FRANCE PUT ON 'SPOT' BY HITLER

British Cabinet Shift, Threat By Dictator Place French In Difficult Position.

Czechoslovakia's aid if she is attacked, the French now forsee that they may soon be faced with the most desperate dilemma since the World war—either to quit their little ally and thereby lose every other ally, or to fight without the indispensable help of England

Part of the inside story of this major European crisis has hitherto remained untold. It began to unfold early last week when, after Hitler's Austrian coup, the Czech minister in Berlin called upon foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop He was surprised also to be faced by Baron Constantin von Neurath, head of the German cabinet council

Both men told him "We hope that Czechoslovakian relations with the reich may soon be placed on the same satisfactory basis as Austrian relations under the new regime"

This was communicated to the French government which in midweek made the formal proposal to the British that both governments should agree to send Hitler a joint statement, couched in the strongest terms to the effect that the limit of their tolerance had been reached, and that hereafter France and England intend to brook no further German aggression

The British delayed answering, and still were debating this among other alarming matters at the cabinet meeting last night, when Eden resigned

It is presumed that Eden favored going with the French, whereas Chamberlain was opposed

The prime minister and Lord Halifax are described by Eden's friends as preferring the policy of Cartoonist Low's famous comic character, Colonel Blimp who says, "The only way to avoid being bullied by Hitler is to find out what he wants to do and do it"

The British today are feeling more than ever how low the prestige of the empire had sunk when they were forced to listen to Hitler denounce bolshevik Russia as the lowest thing in creation, then contemptuously add "But I would rather believe what Stalin says of his intentions than anything the British ministers say"

The French see only two possible gleams of light in what looks like the blackest summer of this decade

One is their hope that Eden may now lead such a vigorous opposition to the Chamberlain government that parliament and the country will either force a change in policy in favor of a stronger front against Germany and Italy, or a change in the government, with Eden as prime minister.

Two Possibilities Left.

Their second hope is that Hitler at any rate will commit no warlike act in Czechoslovakia, which would demand French intervention.

In fact, the belief is growing that he may handle Czechoslovakia a la Spain, with an internal uprising of the German minority, followed by German "volunteers" rushing from the reich to help end the civil war

If this could be done without German mobilization, it is highly unlikely that France would move

According to the Czechoslovakian pact, Russia is only obligated to help Czechoslovakia if France does.

The Czech army, however, believes it can hold any "volunteers" at the frontier long enough to force France to act, or publicly quit and scrap her twenty years' post-war policy plus billions of francs invested in the little entente.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The night Terry was to leave, he had dinner alone with Caradad at the apartment. He seemed a very different Terry tonight, very subdued and eager to please—more like the Terry he could be when he wanted to. It was difficult not to relent, not to let a flood of memories sweep away all the little doubts. Yet Caradad's calm judgment made her aware that Terry was not at ease. He acted like a small boy with something on his conscience.

If Terry only could be a little more straightforward. It was strange how she kept comparing him with Severance. J. S. was painfully forthright and blunt. He was most disconcerting, yet it would never occur to any one to question his sincerity.

Caradad tried to reach a conclusion with herself as to just how far J. S. had influenced her in her attitude toward Terry. He had been very frank in letting her know how deeply he cared for her. He even had given Terry reason to think so—yet he had been so decent about it. That was the word. In spite of all he had said, he had been very careful to keep out of the picture. So careful that he had succeeded in making her miss him. And he would soon be going away and, most likely, out of her life.

Caradad found herself feeling rather glad that Terry's train left at a fairly early hour. When the moment for leave-taking arrived, the tension seemed to increase. Terry attempted to cover it with a jocular mood.

"This is the first time I've gone away since we started housekeeping," he reminded her with a smile. "Will you promise me to be duly lonesome?

"Of course," she answered in the same vein. "I'll deny myself to all callers."

"A fine chance around here," he grinned, "and this is once we can take advantage of it, or I can, of the rights and privileges you once insisted upon giving me."

Before she realized what he was about to do, Terry caught her in his arms, held her closely and pressed a lingering kiss against her unresisting mouth.

"Good-bye, dear," he whispered And was gone.

Almost an hour later, he called from the station: "Dad—you're not angry with me?"

"No."

"Sure?"

"Of course."

"Well, I thought I'd feel better if I knew. Oh, yes. I wanted to tell you that I wasn't sorry. 'Bye."

Nearly a week passed without any word from Terry. Caradad did not resent it. She excused Terry readily. He was enjoying a change of scene. She was so prompt in coming to that conclusion that she began to wonder a little if she were not enjoying something of the sort herself. She missed Terry; she expected to. But it was more of a relief than she anticipated to find that her number of callers had lessened noticably.

There was one rainy afternoon when she found herself wishing she had somebody to talk to. Her mind suddenly reverted to the card in her secretary, the one with John Severance's phone number on it. If he hadn't made it so uncomfortably plain that he was expecting a call from her and that, when she did call, it would be a request for some service at his hands . . .

That made it entirely out of the question. Just the same, she wondered a little. Wished.

J. S. still had a trick of obtruding in her thoughts of Terry, and the latter was much in her mind these days. No matter what instance was under consideration, it ended always with that last good-bye. The tingling shock of his embrace—and the first kiss from him since she was a very small girl. Somehow, that kiss had not brought a thrill.

For some reason, the lines of a poem kept recurring. It was Oscar Wilde, wasn't it? Something about each man killing the thing he loved . . .

The coward does it with a kiss,
The brave man with a sword."

It wasn't very nice to think of that. But the words would come in spite of her. Queer how one admired lines of poetry well enough to memorize them.

"Mr. Tankersley is calling, ma'am," Wilberforce intoned from the doorway.

Nick beamed at Dad, his smile more vacuous than usual.

"'Lo, Annie Oakley."

"Hello, Mr. Tankersley," she responded with a smile. "I've been sitting here wishing that some one would come in and talk to me."

"Yeah? How come you're on a lonesome trail? I thought this place of yours, from what I'd heard, was like mine. Sort of a high-class taproom. I've been thinking about hiring a bouncer."

Caradad looked at Nick somewhat apprehensively. It was the first time that she had seen him when she was positive he was under the influence of liquor. Nick made her suspicions a certainty, after staring at her owlishly a moment, with the bland remark: "Annie, dear, I'm drunk."

"And I'm sorry," she replied seriously.

"Oh, you needn't be. It isn't that sort of a jag, you know. It won't be necessary to have your man set me out on your front steps. I know perfectly well what I 'm doing. That's the whole trouble."

"Of course you do," Caradad humored him.

"Yes, Ma'am. I know perfectly. The same as I know that us old friends and neighbors have got to stick together. I'm mighty fond of you, Annie. I have been from the first time these old eyes saw you at the Rushmore."

"I'm glad of that," she laughed. "I like you, too."

"You know, Annie, us Westerners are peculiar about our women—they're a precious article, you know. We can't stand seeing one of them get the double-cross without seeing red. That's why I'm here, Annie. I'm seeing red."

"You're being ridiculous, you mean," she laughed, and tried to change the subject. "I'm sorry that Terry isn't around this afternoon. He went up into Wisconsin to play some polo last week. I'm expecting him back almost any time."

"Yeah? Tell me more."

"I'm afraid I can't. I don't know where the place is."

"So the Honorable Terry hasn't gotten home yet—rather wanted to see him. I was thinking some of taking him apart. Good fellow. But he always is bringing out the worst in me, Annie. Some folks are like that. Do you know a fellow named Gates, Tommie Gates?"

"I don't remember meeting anybody by that name."

"Well, you have. He was at my party and yours. Good egg, Tommie. I saw him today—rather, he came to see me." Nick stretched his feet out before him and stared at the ceiling. Caradad was becoming a trifle annoyed. She waited for him to continue.

"Annie," he said abruptly, "I told you I was drunk ,didn't I?"

"I believe you've suggested it, Mr. Tankersley.'

"I've changed my mind — and please call me Nick. I'm not drunk I wish I were. Honest. I do."

"Would it be so difficult to attain your desire?" Caradad's tone was chilly.

"You don't get me, Annie. When a chap's really spiffed, he's not responsible for what he says. If I were like that, I'd tell you about Tommie and how he got in from St. Louis this morning. Then, if I were sufficiently potted, I'd tell you how he saw Terry there—and that he wasn't playing polo. So what?"

Caradad felt a curious chill at Nick's words. She heard her voice raised in contradiction to Nick—in defense of Terry. In defense of herself. It was her voice, but it seemed to be coming from far away.

"Your friend must have been mistaken."

"Pretty lucid, Annie. Happened to be on the same sleeper going into the city, you know. Gosh, if only I was polluted enough to tell you that he wasn't . . . alone. But I'm not. So that's that."

"Please!" Caradad managed in a low, suffocated voice. "I'm not interested, Mr. Tankersley . . . I'm not!"

"Of course you wouldn't be, Annie. And I'm awfully glad I had enough sense not to tell you about it. I wouldn't believe it myself, not even when Tommie Gates told me about it. No, sir!"

"ARE CAMELS REALLY DIFFERENT FROM OTHER CIGARETTES?"...a question of interest to every smoker

"I've never been very fussy about cigarettes myself. Do you think that Camels are really as different as some people say, Bill?"
"You bet they are different, John! A fellow in any work as hard as selling has to figure a lot of angles on his smoking, such as how it agrees with him. And just notice how many salesmen smoke Camels. I changed to Camels—smoked 'em steadily—and I found a distinct difference in the way I enjoyed all-day smoking. Camels agree with me!"

A FRIEND DROPS IN to see how Bill is coming with his model racing sloop. Daly passes the Camels and answers a natural question about smoking. "That all-cigarettes-are-alike talk doesn't square with my experience. Believe me, steady smoking is the test that shows Camels in a class by themselves."

...When H. W. DALY, 34, rayon salesman, says "Yes, Camels are really different," millions of other smokers stand ready to back him up. And that explains why Camels are preferred by the largest body of smokers ever known.

A KISS FROM MARITA (Mrs. Daly) and Bill is off to catch the 7:55 on which he commutes to his job in the city. The Dalys agree about most things. Among them, Camels. Mrs. Daly smoked them first, soon noticed a difference. "Now we find that Camels agree better with both of us," she says.

MARITA'S PLANNING a grand feed. "We enjoy entertaining," Marita says. "I like to have plenty of Camels at the table. Camels certainly help to cheer up one's digestion."

ON WEEK-ENDS, Bill goes in for photography. Week days he "pounds the streets." "I get plenty tired," he says, "but when energy fails I get a quick 'lift' with a Camel."

ARE YOU ONLY A 3/4 WIFE?

Men can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is lovable for three weeks of the month—but a nell-cat the fourth.

No matter how your back aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomfort from the functional disorders which women must endure.

Make a note NOW to get a bottle of Pinkham's today WITHOUT FAIL from your druggist—more than a million women have written in letters reporting benefit.

Why not try LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND?

Pep Up! Be Popular!

People with "go" are always the most popular. Yet the secret of abounding energy is often merely a matter of keeping regular. For tiredness, headaches, sleeplessness, loss of appetite, mental depression can all be caused by constipation.

Truly, proper elimination is all-important to your well-being. So if more than one day goes by without it, assist Nature. Use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This laxative is extremely mild. And Olive Tablets are marvelously effective because they stimulate the liver's secretion of bile without the discomfort of drastic, irritating drugs.

Let Olive Tablets help safeguard your welfare and pep. 15¢, 30¢ and 60¢ at all druggists, everywhere.

Jury Decides He Didn't Alienate Love of Boston Man's Wife.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A supreme court jury of seven men and five women today returned a verdict in favor of Bernarr MacFadden, magazine publisher, in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought against him by Sortir C. Adams, Boston cafeteria manager.

Adams had charged MacFadden, who is 69, had seduce his wife, Abbie, 45, in a Battle Creek, Mich., sanitarium owned by MacFadden and in which Mrs. Adams was employed as a nurse.

BLAZE KILLS 3

Nine Others Escape as Fire Levels Farmhouse.

SALEM, N. Y.— (AP) —Three persons burned to death early today in a fire that destroyed a rambling frame farmhouse. Nine persons escaped.

The dead, apparently trapped in their rooms, were:

James Woodard, 24, Wallace Woodard, 21, and Orley Woodard, 20, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Worden Woodard, who fled the burning building with their six other children and a house guest.

Raw Throat? Here's Quick Action!

Kill the cold germs that attack your throat and cause miserable colds. At the first sign of "raw" throat, gargle with Zonite.

Zonite is 9 3 times more active, by standard laboratory tests, than any other popular non-poisonous antiseptic. Kills all kinds of cold germs—at contact! And Zonite soothes your throat.

Get Zonite at once. Gargle immediately—1 teaspoon Zonite to half glass water. Kill cold germs before they spread UP into sinuses or DOWN into bronchial tubes. You'll feel relief after the first gargle with Zonite.

Don't Neglect Minor Throat Irritation

Musterole gets such marvelous results because it's NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant"—easing, warming, stimulating and penetrating—helpful in drawing out local congestion and pain.

Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists'. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong. Approved by Good Housekeeping.

WOMEN'S AILMENTS

WOMEN and growing girls who suffer from irregular periods, headaches, backache and nervousness due to functional disturbances will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription beneficial. It stimulates the appetite and increases the flow of gastric juice, so aiding digestion, and thus helps to strengthen one and aids in promoting functional regularity and in relieving the discomforts of the menstrual period. Mrs. Ella Sessler, 218½ Sycamore St., South Bend, says: "I suffered for months from irregularity and was too weak to do anything. After taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I noticed a great difference, so I continued until I was feeling real good." Buy it in liquid or tablets from your druggist today.

SMALLPOX HITS LEXINGTON, 3 ILL

New Cases Boost County Total to 82; Quarantines Lifted on 4 More Homes.

With four new cases of smallpox reported by health authorities over the week-end, three of which are at Lexington, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county public health commissioner, urged the vaccination of all persons in that community.

"Due to the numerous contacts in that vicinity," Dr. Rehder said, "all residents in Lexington who have not been successfully vaccinated within the past five years, should do so at once."

Meanwhile four other families were released from quarantine by the health department.

The new cases, all in the county, brings the total reported in the 17 days to 82. Two of the new victims are adults and two are children. They are Mrs. Virginia Hamilton, Mrs. Grace Maxwell, and her 11-year-old daughter, Marilyn, all of Lexington, and Caroline Kantz, 4, of Madison township. The Maxwell child is a student at the Lexington school.

OFF TO RESCUE

Navy Goes After Officers, Crew of Wrecked Mine Sweeper.

BREMERTON, Wash. — (AP) — The U. S. navy sped a rescue ship toward bleak Kanaga island in the Aleutian group today to pick up 40 officers and men of the minesweeper Swallow, wrecked on jagged rocks Saturday.

The crew abandoned ship in lifeboats after the Swallow hit. All were reported safe on the barren island, 1,400 miles west of Seward, Alaska.

PAIR CAPTURED

Ohioan Held After Gun Battle With Illinois Police.

DANVILLE, Ill. —(AP)— Larry R. Bowery, 30, of Canton, O., and Earl G. Stambro, 34, of Anaheim, Calif. were in custody today following a running gun battle with police through downtown streets.

Bowery was in a hospital with a bullet wound in his hip. Police Chief Richard Johnson said the pair confessed 15 holdups in Illinois and Indiana.

RE-APPOINTS CANNY

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The president sent to the senate today the re-appointment of Francis C. Canny, United States attorney for the southern district of Ohio.

INCOME TAX IN NUTSHELL

NO. 25

Automobile Deductions.

With the number of automobile owners registering in the millions, the question of deductions for the cost of operation and maintenance of a motor car frequently arises. The purchase price of an automobile, whether it is to be used for business or pleasure, cannot be deducted from gross income. If used for business, it is a captal expenditure; if used for pleasure, it is a personal expenditure—both deductions being expressly prohibited by the income-tax law.

Several deductions, however, are allowable in connection with the cost of maintenance and operation of an automobile, used either for business or pleasure. If used exclusively for business, deductions may be taken for the cost of gasoline, oil, repairs, garage rent, and other necessary operation and upkeep expenses. Depreciation based on the cost of the car and its estimated useful life, also is deductible.

Other deductible items are as follows: Sums paid during the taxable year for registration fees, drivers' licenses, personal-property tax, and municipal taxes; interest on money borrowed for the purchase of a motor car, either for business or for pleasure; loss sustained by reason of damage while car is being used for business, provided such loss is not covered by insurance or otherwise; damages paid for injury to another, provided that the car was being used for business at the time and the damage was not covered by insurance or otherwise; and the amount paid for insurance on motor vehicles used for business purposes.

JURY TO PROBE POLICE SLAYING

Hamilton Panel Called For Wednesday as Police Jail 2 Suspects on 'Tip.'

(By Associated Press)

HAMILTON—The Butler county grand jury will meet Wednesday to consider first degree murder charges against two youths accused of the fatal shooting of Patrolman Aaron Laubach Jan. 27 during a filling station holdup

Prosecutor Paul Baden summoned the jury to consider the cases against John W. Cline, 24, and his brother-in-law, Chester Francis, 19, both of West Elkton, captured in West Alexandria, Preble county, late Saturday after a tip received by Dayton detectives

Detective Oscar Decker signed murder warrants against the pair. Cline was picked out from a police lineup by Claude May, station attendant who was robbed of $50 during the holdup.

Laubach, who had reported at the station to guard it as a result of a series of robberies, was slain as he started firing at the bandit.

Francis admitted, Decker said, that he waited outside in an automobile during the holdup and quoted Cline as saying when he returned that he "had to shoot a man."

Rewards totalling $915 were offered for the arrest and conviction of the slayers of Laubach, second officer to be killed on duty here within a year.

Police Release Youth Questioned In Safe Cracking

A 21-year-old suspect, held in jail over the week-end in connection with the safe robbery at the Lindeman and Almy printery last Friday, was released by police today.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said the youth had been set free after a lengthy questioning Saturday and again today He said that he was satisfied that the suspect had not been connected with the crime.

The safe-cracking was revealed by police Friday afternoon, seven hours after they had been called.

Entrance to the print shop office at 66 North Diamond street, was gained by breaking the glass in a basement door early the night before The combination was knocked off the unlocked safe, and the strong box, which was left lying in the middle of the floor, looted of $11 in cash and an undetermined amount of sales tax money.

THE PIPER'S TUNE

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The night Terry was to leave, he had dinner alone with Caradad at the apartment. He seemed a very different Terry tonight, very subdued and eager to please—more like the Terry he could be when he wanted to. It was difficult not to relent, not to let a flood of memories sweep away all the little doubts. Yet Caradad's calm judgment made her aware that Terry was not at ease. He acted like a small boy with something on his conscience.

If Terry only could be a little more straightforward. It was strange how she kept comparing him with Severance. J. S. was painfully forthright and blunt. He was most disconcerting, yet it would never occur to any one to question his sincerity.

Caradad tried to reach a conclusion with herself as to just how far J. S. had influenced her in her attitude toward Terry. He had been very frank in letting her know how deeply he cared for her. He even had given Terry reason to think so—yet he had been so decent about it. That was the word. In spite of all he had said, he had been very careful to keep out of the picture. So careful that he had succeeded in making her miss him. And he would soon be going away and, most likely, out of her life.

Caradad found herself feeling rather glad that Terry's train left at a fairly early hour. When the moment for leave-taking arrived, the tension seemed to increase. Terry attempted to cover it with a jocular mood.

"This is the first time I've gone away since we started housekeeping," he reminded her with a smile. "Will you promise me to be duly lonesome?"

"Of course," she answered in the same vein. "I'll deny myself to all callers."

"A fine chance around here," he grinned, "and this is once we can take advantage of it, or I can, of the rights and privileges you once insisted upon giving me."

Before she realized what he was about to do, Terry caught her in his arms, held her closely and pressed a lingering kiss against her unresisting mouth.

"Good-bye, dear," he whispered. And was gone.

Almost an hour later, he called from the station: "Dad—you're not angry with me?"

"No."

"Sure?"

"Of course."

"Well, I thought I'd feel better if I knew. Oh, yes. I wanted to tell you that I wasn't sorry. 'Bye."

Nearly a week passed without any word from Terry. Caradad did not resent it. She excused Terry readily. He was enjoying a change of scene. She was so prompt in coming to that conclusion that she began to wonder a little if she were not enjoying something of the sort herself. She missed Terry, she expected to. But it was more of a relief than she anticipated to find that her number of callers had lessened noticably.

There was one rainy afternoon when she found herself wishing she had somebody to talk to. Her mind suddenly reverted to the card in her secretary, the one with John Severance's phone number on it. If he hadn't made it so uncomfortably plain that he was expecting a call from her and that, when she did call, it would be a request for some service at his hands . . .

That made it entirely out of the question. Just the same, she wondered a little. Wished.

J. S. still had a trick of obtruding in her thoughts of Terry, and the latter was much in her mind these days. No matter what instance was under consideration, it ended always with that last good-bye. The tingling shock of his embrace—and the first kiss from him since she was a very small girl. Somehow, that kiss had not brought a thrill.

For some reason, the lines of a poem kept recurring. It was Oscar Wilde wasn't it? Something about each man killing the thing he loved . . .

'The coward does it with a kiss,
The brave man with a sword.'

It wasn't very nice to think of that. But the words would come in spite of her. Queer how one admired lines of poetry well enough to memorize them.

"Mr. Tankersley is calling, ma'am.' Wilberforce intoned from the doorway.

Nick beamed at Dad, his smile more vacuous than usual.

"'Lo, Annie Oakley."

"Hello, Mr. Tankersley,' she responded with a smile. "I've been sitting here wishing that some one would come in and talk to me."

"Yeah? How come you're on a lonesome trail? I thought this place of yours from what I'd heard, was like mine. Sort of a high-class taproom. I've been thinking about hiring a bouncer."

Caradad looked at Nick somewhat apprehensively. It was the first time that she had seen him when she was positive he was under the influence of liquor. Nick made her suspicions a certainty, after staring at her owlishly a moment, with the bland remark "Annie, dear, I'm drunk."

"And I'm sorry," she replied seriously.

"Oh, you needn't be. It isn't that sort of a jag you know. It won't be necessary to have your man set me out on your front steps. I know perfectly well what I'm doing. That's the whole trouble."

"Of course you do,' Caradad humored him.

"Yes, Ma'am. I know perfectly. The same as I know that us old friends and neighbors have got to stick together. I'm mighty fond of you, Annie. I have been from the first time these old eyes saw you at the Rushmore."

"I'm glad of that," she laughed. "I like you, too."

"You know, Annie, us Westerners are peculiar about our women—they're a precious article, you know. We can't stand seeing one of them get the double-cross without seeing red. That's why I'm here, Annie. I'm seeing red."

"You're being ridiculous, you mean," she laughed, and tried to change the subject. "I'm sorry that Terry isn't around this afternoon. He went up into Wisconsin to play some polo last week. I'm expecting him back almost any time."

"Yeah? Tell me more."

"I'm afraid I can't. I don't know where the place is."

"So the Honorable Terry hasn't gotten home yet—rather wanted to see him. I was thinking some of taking him apart. Good fellow. But he always is bringing out the worst in me, Annie. Some folks are like that. Do you know a fellow named Gates, Tommie Gates?'

"I don't remember meeting anybody by that name."

"Well, you have. He was at my party and yours. Good egg, Tommie. I saw him today—rather, he came to see me." Nick stretched his feet out before him and stared at the ceiling. Caradad was becoming a trifle annoyed. She waited for him to continue.

"Annie,' he said abruptly, "I told you I was drunk ,didn't I?"

"I believe you've suggested it, Mr. Tankersley."

"I've changed my mind — and please call me Nick. I'm not drunk. I wish I were. Honest I do."

"Would it be so difficult to attain your desire?" Caradad's tone was chilly.

"You don't get me, Annie. When a chap's really spiffed, he's not responsible for what he says. If I were like that, I'd tell you about Tommie and how he got in from St. Louis this morning. Then, if I were sufficiently potted, I'd tell you how he saw Terry there—and that he wasn't playing polo. So what?"

Caradad felt a curious chill at Nick's words. She heard her voice raised in contradiction to Nick—in defense of Terry. In defense of herself. It was her voice, but it seemed to be coming from far away.

"Your friend must have been mistaken."

"Pretty lucid, Annie. Happened to be on the same sleeper going into the city you know. Gosh, if only I was polluted enough to tell you that he wasn't . . . alone. But I'm not. So that's that."

"Please!' Caradad managed in a low, suffocated voice. "I'm not interested, Mr. Tankersley . . . I'm not!"

"Of course you wouldn't be, Annie. And I'm awfully glad I had enough sense not to tell you about it. I wouldn't believe it myself, not even when Tommie Gates told me about it. No, sir!"

CITES OPERATOR OF RESTAURANT

State Investigator Files Charge Against Mansfield Woman.

A Mansfield restaurant operator is scheduled to appear before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court Wednesday to answer charges of violation of the female labor law.

Mrs. Margaret Dailey, operator of Margaret's inn, 233 Park avenue east, was charged by the state investigator of the minimum wage division, with working girl employes for more than eight hours in violation of the act.

Affidavits filed by Mrs. Gertrude Weaver, state investigator, charged Mrs. Daily worked one employe under 21 years of age after 10 p. m.; another 11 hours on at least one occasion while a third worked 14 hours in one day.

GIVES OPERETTA

St. Peter's Dramatic Club to Present Play 2 Evenings.

The Senior Dramatic club of St. Peter's High school will present its first performance of the year, "An Old Kentucky Garden," an operetta, Tuesday and Thursday at 8:00 p. m. in the school auditorium.

The two-act operetta has its setting in Kentucky about 1850. It features an incident in the life of Stephen Foster, one of America's most popular song writers. Many old favorites, "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Black Joe," "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair," "Oh, Susanna," "Old Folks at Home" and "Nelly Was a Lady," will be heard.

Joseph Tarillion and Helen Jasinski head the cast which includes Kevin Crotty, Joseph Denig, Harold Reindl, Josephine Mecurio, Mary Birk, Edward Czernewski, Delmar Oakes, Joseph Weber, James Reindl, Carmela Altomonte, Paul Wentz and Steven Kasper. A chorus of 60 is composed of juniors and seniors.

ARE YOU ONLY A 3/4 WIFE?
Men can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is lovable for three weeks of the month—but a hell-cat the fourth.
No matter how your back aches—no matter how lonely your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband.
For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure.
Make a note NOW to get a bottle of Pinkham's today, WITHOUT FAIL, from your druggist—more than a million women have written in letters reporting benefit.
Why not try LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND?

Pep Up! Be Popular!
People with "go" are always the most popular. Yet the secret of abounding energy is often merely a matter of keeping regular. For tiredness, headaches, sleeplessness, loss of appetite, mental depression can all be caused by constipation.
Truly, proper elimination is all-important to your well-being. So if more than one day goes by without it, assist Nature. Use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This laxative is extremely mild. And Olive Tablets are marvelously effective because they stimulate the liver's secretion of bile without the discomfort of drastic, irritating drugs.
Let Olive Tablets help safeguard your welfare and pep. 15c, 30c and 60c at all druggists, everywhere.

"ARE CAMELS REALLY DIFFERENT FROM OTHER CIGARETTES?"...a question of interest to every smoker

"I've never been very fussy about cigarettes myself. Do you think that Camels are really as different as some people say, Bill?"
"You bet they are different, John! A fellow in any work as hard as selling has to figure a lot of angles on his smoking, such as how it agrees with him. And just notice how many salesmen smoke Camels. I changed to Camels—smoked 'em steadily—and I found a distinct difference in the way I enjoyed all-day smoking. Camels agree with me!"

...When H. W. DALY, 34, rayon salesman, says "Yes, Camels are really different," millions of other smokers stand ready to back him up. And that explains why Camels are preferred by the largest body of smokers ever known.

A KISS FROM MARITA (Mrs. Daly) and Bill is off to catch the 7:55 on which he commutes to his job in the city. The Dalys agree about most things. Among them, Camels. Mrs. Daly smoked them first, soon noticed a difference. "Now we find that Camels agree better with both of us," she says.

A FRIEND DROPS IN to see how Bill is coming with his model racing sloop. Daly passes the Camels and answers a natural question about smoking. "That all-cigarettes-are-alike talk doesn't square with my experience. Believe me, steady smoking is the test that shows Camels in a class by themselves."

MARITA'S PLANNING a grand feed. "We enjoy entertaining," Marita says. "I like to have plenty of Camels at the table. Camels certainly help to cheer up one's digestion."

ON WEEK-ENDS, Bill goes in for photography. Week days he "pounds the streets." "I get plenty tired," he says, "but when energy fails I get a quick 'lift' with a Camel."

M'FADDEN WINS

Jury Decides He Didn't Alienate Love of Boston Man's Wife.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A supreme court jury of seven men and five women today returned a verdict in favor of Bernarr MacFadden, magazine publisher, in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought against him by Sortir C. Adams, Boston cafeteria manager.

Adams had charged MacFadden, who is 69, had seduce his wife, Abbie, 45, in a Battle Creek, Mich., sanitarium owned by MacFadden and in which Mrs. Adams was employed as a nurse.

BLAZE KILLS 3

Nine Others Escape as Fire Levels Farmhouse.

SALEM, N. Y.— (AP) —Three persons burned to death early today in a fire that destroyed a rambling frame farmhouse. Nine persons escaped.

The dead, apparently trapped in their rooms, were:

James Woodard, 24, Wallace Woodard, 21, and Orley Woodard, 20, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Worden Woodard, who fled the burning building with their six other children and a house guest.

Raw Throat? Here's Quick Action!

Zonite is 9 3 times more active, by standard laboratory tests, than any other popular non-poisonous antiseptic. Kills all kinds of cold germs—at contact! And Zonite soothes your throat.

Get Zonite at once. Gargle immediately—1 teaspoon Zonite to half glass water. Kill cold germs before they spread UP into sinuses or DOWN into bronchial tubes. You'll feel relief after the first gargle with Zonite.

Don't Neglect Minor Throat Irritation

Musterole gets such marvelous results because it's NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant"—easing, warming, stimulating and penetrating—helpful in drawing out local congestion and pain.

Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists'. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong. Approved by Good Housekeeping.

WOMEN'S AILMENTS

WOMEN and growing girls who suffer from irregular periods, headaches, backache and nervousness due to functional disturbances will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription beneficial. It stimulates the appetite and increases the flow of gastric juice, so aiding digestion, and thus helps to strengthen one and aids in promoting functional regularity and in relieving the discomforts of the menstrual period. Mrs. Ella Sessler, 218½ Sycamore St., South Bend, says: "I suffered for months from irregularity and was too weak to do anything. After taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I noticed a great difference, so I continued until I was feeling real good." Buy it in liquid or tablets from your druggist today.

SMALLPOX HITS LEXINGTON, 3 ILL

New Cases Boost County Total to 82; Quarantines Lifted on 4 Homes.

With four new cases of smallpox reported by health authorities over the week-end, three of which are at Lexington, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county public health commissioner, urged the vaccination of all persons in that community.

"Due to the numerous contacts in that vicinity," Dr Rehder said, "all residents in Lexington who have not been successfully vaccinated within the past five years, should do so at once."

Meanwhile four other families were released from quarantine by the health department.

The new cases, all in the county, brings the total reported in the 17 days to 82. Two of the new victims are adults and two are children. They are Mrs. Virginia Hamilton, Mrs. Grace Maxwell, and her 11-year-old daughter, Marilyn, all of Lexington, and Caroline Kantz, 4, of Madison township. The Maxwell child is a student at the Lexington school.

INCOME TAX IN NUTSHELL

NO. 25

Automobile Deductions.

With the number of automobile owners registering in the millions, the question of deductions for the cost of operation and maintenance of a motor car frequently arises. The purchase price of an automobile, whether it is to be used for business or pleasure, cannot be deducted from gross income. If used for business, it is a captal expenditure: if used for pleasure, it is a personal expenditure—both deductions being expressly prohibited by the income-tax law.

Several deductions, however, are allowable in connection with the cost of maintenance and operation of an automobile, used either for business or pleasure. If used exclusively for business, deductions may be taken for the cost of gasoline, oil, repairs, garage rent, and other necessary operation and upkeep expenses. Depreciation based on the cost of the car and its estimated useful life, also is deductible.

Other deductible items are as follows: Sums paid during the taxable year for registration fees, drivers' licenses, personal-property tax, and municipal taxes; interest on money borrowed for the purchase of a motor car, either for business or for pleasure; loss sustained by reason of damage while car is being used for business, provided such loss is not covered by insurance or otherwise; damages paid for injury to another, provided that the car was being used for business at the time and the damage was not covered by insurance or otherwise; and the amount paid for insurance on motor vehicles used for business purposes.

JURY TO PROBE POLICE SLAYING

Hamilton Panel Called For Wednesday as Police Jail 2 Suspects on 'Tip.'

(By Associated Press)

HAMILTON—The Butler county grand jury will meet Wednesday to consider first degree murder charges against two youths accused of the fatal shooting of Patrolman Aaron Laubach Jan. 27 during a filling station holdup

Prosecutor Paul Baden summoned the jury to consider the cases against John W. Cline, 24, and his brother-in-law, Chester Francis, 19, both of West Elkton, captured in West Alexandria, Preble county, late Saturday after a tip received by Dayton detectives

Detective Oscar Decker signed murder warrants against the pair. Cline was picked out from a police lineup by Claude May, station attendant who was robbed of $50 during the holdup.

Laubach, who had reported at the station to guard it as a result of a series of robberies, was slain as he started firing at the bandit.

Francis admitted, Decker said, that he waited outside in an automobile during the holdup and quoted Cline as saying when he returned that he "had to shoot a man."

Rewards totalling $915 were offered for the arrest and conviction of the slayers of Laubach, second officer to be killed on duty here within a year.

Police Release Youth Questioned In Safe Cracking

A 21-year-old suspect, held in jail over the week-end in connection with the safe robbery at the Lindeman and Almy printery last Friday, was released by police today

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said the youth had been set free after a lengthy questioning Saturday and again today. He said that he was satisfied that the suspect had not been connected with the crime

The safe-cracking was revealed by police Friday afternoon, seven hours after they had been called.

Entrance to the print shop office at 66 North Diamond street, was gained by breaking the glass in a basement door early the night before. The combination was knocked off the unlocked safe, and the strong box, which was left lying in the middle of the floor, looted of $11 in cash and an undetermined amount of sales tax money.

LOANS $25 to $1000

A loan that balanced the budget...

"One night I sat down and totaled up my debts; also the amount I had to pay on them each month. I owed $600 and there were some pretty old bills among them. I was risking my credit but my pay check simply wouldn't go far enough.

"I stopped in The City Loan just to talk the matter over. Their simple, debt-settling plan struck me favorably at once. I took the cash - $800 worth - on my own signature and security, paid up everything, earned several large discounts, bought new clothes and a few other things for the family.

"Now we are paying on one account. We have more money for our own personal enjoyment, and I am sure we will soon be out of the red for good."

VALUE RECEIVED. Loans are put to many good uses. Emergencies are met . . . serious illness overcome . . . profitable enterprises started.

Take a loan. Make it serve you well. Compare the cost with what you get out of it.

By financing your personal needs through The City Loan you get honest value for what you pay.

Read About George Washington.

HISTORY has little value unless knowledge of the past can be translated into the wisdom needed in dealing with the present and planning for the future.

A record of the life of George Washington does little more than satisfy idle curiosity unless it serves to inspire some people of each succeeding generation with a desire to emulate the traits of character that made him great.

Adults, as well as children in school, might well let February 22 become an occasion devoted to reading something about Washington.

A great blessing of this favored land is that such a man as Washington held first place among its founders.

An excellent characterization of Washington was given by Thomas Jefferson, who knew him well. Jefferson wrote:

> "His character was in its mass, perfect, in nothing bad, in few points indifferent; and it may truly be said that never did nature and fortune combine more perfectly to make a man great, and to place him in the same constellation with whatever worthies have merited from man an everlasting remembrance. For his was the singular destiny and merit of leading the armies of his country successfully through an arduous war for the establishment of independence; of conducting its councils through the birth of a government, new in its forms and principles, until it had settled down into a quiet and orderly train: and of scrupulously obeying the laws through the whole of his career, civil and military, of which the history of the world furnishes no other example."

But it is not merely as a lofty and perhaps unattainable ideal that Washington appeals to Americans, generation after generation. He is interesting in his practicality and many-sidedness.

He was the greatest farmer of his day and made a fortune out of it, and has left in his diaries an instructive record of his agricultural work.

He was in many ways, says Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, the historian, the most successful business man of his time, although he was obliged to spend most of his mature years in public service; and when he died, he left a fortune immense for his time.

He was a tireless experimenter and observer.

He was perhaps our first great real estate operator, dealing with western lands on a vast scale.

He was a man of vision in the realm of transportation, who foresaw canals connecting the Atlantic, the Mississippi and the Great Lakes, when the intervening regions were complete wilderness.

Consider a thought expressed by Washington: "We ought not to look back unless it is to derive useful lessons from past errors, and for the purpose of profiting by dear bought experience."

New Chance for Dirigibles.

THERE has been some criticism of the government policy of selling helium gas to foreign countries for use in lighter-than-air craft. On the whole, however, the country seems to approve the action. The first license for export of helium has been granted to the American Zeppelin Transport, Inc., and the gas will be used in the new giant LZ-130 when it makes its first voyage to America.

Those who fear the government is going to supply an essential war material to potential enemies should be calmed by the restrictions surrounding the sale of helium abroad. In the first place, its use is limited to commercial transportation. Furthermore, the LZ-130 must travel directly to the United States, making no stops on the way except in emergency. Two American naval officers will travel on it, with free and full access to operating and navigating rooms.

German zeppelins have been the only successfully operated commercial dirigibles. Up to the time of the disaster to the Hindenburg last May they had made a remarkable record, chiefly under command of Dr. Hugo Eckener, genius in this line. Travelers found that means of transport delightful and helium gas greatly increases its safety. In spite of American dirigible disasters, it seems reasonable to continue development of this type of craft, and to make helium generally available under proper restrictions.

Another Precocious Child.

NEW YORK reporters were amazed when three-year-old Jean Demers of Nova Scotia started exhibiting her information. "They call me the walking book of knowledge," she said; "just ask me anything you like." So they did. And according to the newspaper account:

> "She knew all the answers. Boredly, as though impatient for something really hard, she replied that Paramaribo is the capital of Dutch Guiana, that Lake Michigan is the fifth largest lake in the world, with an area of 22,450 square miles; that the buffer state between Russia and China is Mongolia; and that the Suez canal was opened in 1869 and built by a French engineer named Ferdinand de Lesseps. She knew that Woodrow Wilson drew up the Nine-power treaty, that the United States bought Alaska from Russia in 1867 for $7,200,000, that the Yangtse is the longest river in China," and so on and on.

Jean doesn't read yet, but gets her information from the radio, random conversation and the newspapers, which her parents read aloud. Apparently everything soaks into that little mind and nothing is forgotten.

And is little Jean therefore a genius, of the order of Sir Isaac Newton or Shakespeare or Mozart? Probably not. Wonder-children with photographic memories appear occasionally, win local or widespread fame, and in a few years lose their strange gift and revert to normal, like those strange "nova" stars that flame into amazing brilliancy for a little while and then disappear.

When those "small businessmen" went to Washington it was their idea that they should be heard and not herded.

Word comes from a nudist organization that things are being shaped up for the summer.

Railroads Gasp At Bulkley's Toll Road Plan

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—If an industry could give a deep groan or a piercing shriek, of despair, or both, that's what the railroad industry would have given upon the broadcasting of Senator Robert J. Bulkley's scheme for a system of federally-constructed automobile superhighways, gridironing the country, north and south, east and west.

The railroads, as we know, are in dire financial straits; are imploring the Interstate Commerce commission for authority to increase their passenger and freight passenger carrying charges 15 per cent to keep them out of bankruptcy—some of them are in receivers' hands already.

The roads' lamentations are not without justification. Doubtless their distress is due to their own mismanagements (or worse) of long ago. Nevertheless they obviously are genuinely and desperately pinched as of today. Chairman Burton K. Wheeler of a senate committee, which has been investigating their plight, says so. And Senator Wheeler is not a statesman to be overly charitable toward big corporations. There is no profit, he says, in discussing crookednesses of two or three generations back; they are irrevocable. We face the present situation. And he adds that the threatened collapse of as huge an interest as railroading is not a possibility to be lightly weighed by the general public, regardless of the roads themselves.

AUTOS VS. RAILROADS

Well, the development of automotive transportation is recognized as having thrown, more than any other one thing, a well-nigh fatal crimp into railroad prosperity.

I have tried passenger travel by bus. It costs about half as much as travel by rail. But it isn't as comfortable. It is slower, too. If one's time is worth much it isn't necessarily an economy. Same way, certain classes of freight can't be as cheaply moved by auto as by rail, but other classes of it can be more cheaply moved by auto.

And the individual tourist? Alone, his gas will cost him as much as railroad fare. But if he has a wife and three children, he saves money by patronizing his personal auto. I know as important folk as members of congress who say so.

THROUGH TOLL ROADS

The nub of this thing is that the rails have had about as much of this automobile competition as they can stand.

Now comes Senator Bulkley, with a proposition to speed up the automobile.

His plan is not fully developed as yet.

He is going to have, say, three toll roads across the continent, from north to south.

What this will do to railroading is obvious, even though proponents of the superhighway plan say that toll roads for trucks and buses would put them on a par with railroads.

50-YEAR PROGRAM

It will be at least a 50-year road building program.

It will be self-sustaining, as it goes along.

It will develop lines of settlement along the paths of the proposed roads.

Imagine a trip from New York City to San Francisco, along a highway marked by filling stations and hot-dog stands from ocean to ocean! Or similar routes, from the Canada line to the Rio Grande or the Gulf!

TARIFFS BY STATES?

In the meantime, imagine the yowl between the states!

Senator Bulkley doesn't appear to have thought of that.

Interstate tariffs are constitutionally barred; sure.

But, somehow, they are NOT barred.

It depends on whether you are shipping between inter or intrastate designations.

Intra-states are as vicious as poison.

Unique View Concerning Roosevelt.

—By LESLIE EICHEL

HERE is an unique point of view concerning President Roosevelt. It is the analysis of one man, and is presented for what it is worth:

"President Roosevelt, peculiarly enough, suffers from the attacks of his opponents that he is a dictator because he is not. He listens to too many sides.

"In the present crisis over the recession he has been far too willing to give a hearing to every possible source. This may be eminently fair, but it creates a spirit of confusion.

"And confusion is the worst possible thing, can in the end mean the loss of liberty through the rise of charlatans, who might pipe the masses after them with their promises of cure-alls.

"When the president came into office, he realized that he was riding on the crest of change. Now, because of a storm at sea and because some of the passengers have begun to heed false cries of the non-believers to turn back or be lost, the captain himself hesitates. If he hesitates much more, all WILL be lost.

"No land ever was discovered, no world ever was found when the captain himself has been in doubt.

"And when a captain permits the crew—in this instance, congress—to take command, the ship is as good as lost. The best crew in the world cannot direct itself. A figure is need on the bridge who never will turn his head back—and who will stop his ears to the cries of the frightened and the false exhortations of those who have no vision."

PRESIDENCY

Which reminds us that, in a little more than two years hence, both parties will be nominatting men for the presidential race.

And there is not an outstanding figure in sight!

It never has been that way previously in the entire history of the United States.

Some men undoubtedly believe themselves outstanding—Paul V. McNutt, George Earle, Henry A. Wallace, Robert H. Jackson for the Democrats—Arthur S. Vandenberg, Glenn Frank for the Republicans. There are more. But how many times does one hear these names mentioned in the street or in the home?

That surely must be the test.

The home still is full of Roosevelt, for or against (but largely for). And for the second most-spoken name is John L. Lewis, who seems an impossibility as a presidential candidate. Impossible, because the country will not yet elect a labor-ite.

And Roosevelt surely will not seek a third term, no matter how strong the pressure. He is not one for breaking that precedent. He does not believe in third terms. And the man is getting tired.

But surely the country will not permit itself to be thrown to a third-rater. It might be set back half a century.

Yet we seem to be breeding no giants.

Perhaps the third party-ites are. They have the La Guardias and the La Follettes and the Bensons and the Norrises (who now is too old to run). But will Americans ever vote for a third party-ite?

No. The third party-ite will have to gain control of one of the two dominant parties. And that means a Democratic scrap.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Calling It 'Balmy'.

We have an inquiry for the origin and significance of that word "balmy" to imply a mental derangement. "He's balmy," they say, when they mean he's not entirely right in his mind.

This expression must rank as slang. However, it is no chance or unmeaning term. "Balmy" is a corruption of "Barmy" which in this frivolous expression stood for St. Bartholomew, the Patron Saint of the insane. An old bit of English prison slang was "To put on the balmy stick," which meant to feign madness.

Young America Tells---

How To Get By Without Relief.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HOW CAN WE STOP DEPRESSION . . . CURE THE RELIEF PROBLEM?

"By living within our incomes—ceasing our extravagant standards," says Mrs. Charles Clouse, 28 years, of Slippery Rock, Pa. And then follows with a TRUE AMERICAN STORY, as dramatic as any Hollywood Epic.

"My husband and I," says she, "have managed for eight years on a total income of $2,400—an average of $25 a month. And we have a six-year-old son. Also, I'm sick—and we've had to pay doctor, hospital and operations bills out of that meager amount.

"How did we manage? For the first place, we didn't live in towns. Charlie and I went to housekeeping, eight years ago, in an old run-down farm, where we had to walk one-half mile to the mail box—two miles to the nearest country store—four miles to a drug store—and had neither neighbor nor telephone in sight.

"It was a ramshackle, four-room cottage, but Charlie remodeled it, painted and varnished it, cut brush, built the necessary outbuildings and cleaned up our fence rows to make the little place home. We bought kitchen furniture that we painted ourselves, and did without complete dining room and living room suites and over-stuffed pieces.

"For six years we toiled in that backwoods farm. My husband dug coal, chopped wood, and cleared ground for our truck patch, and to raise food for our cow, small flock of chickens and one old horse. He also quarried and burnt lime for the field. I papered the rooms, washed with an old-fashioned tub, carried water from the spring to the house (melting in summer, freezing in winter), did all my own cooking and sewing, weeded the garden, canned from 200 to 300 quarts of fruit and vegetables each fall.

"Our clothes were made from hand-me-downs. My husband wore his wedding suit and I my wedding coat until this winter, when we invested in new ones. Two house dresses and one good one a year is my quota. One year I have a best summer dress, the next a winter one. Each dress does two seasons. I buy a new pair of comfortable shoes about every nine months, taking the old pair for everyday. A hat does me two or three seasons. When I am too sick, my husband and son do the housework as well as any woman.

"We can't, of course, afford movies or parties or a car. But we sometimes indulge in a few more hours of sleep at night, which is a treat. AND WE'RE GLAD TO HAVE EACH OTHER!"

Mrs. Charles Clouse—28 years

Not a whining word—only gladness that they have each other, and honest pride in their hard won independence! There's a letter which should lift every reader's faith in human nature. I cannot feel that such drudgery is blessed or necessary—yet this is the spirit that made America! How about grabbing a pencil and sending these lonely folk a friendly letter—and perhaps a note, or a bunch of old "funnies," to that brave little tad who does Mom's housework when she's sick.

* * *

AND, then, one from Bernice L. Smith of Donora, Pa., which I wager will win a hand from Cape Cod to the Golden Gate.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"I'M SICK OF SUGAR-COATED, FANCY-DRESSED EDUCATION! Ever since I can remember, teachers and professors have been cooing, 'Now, children, let's make a game of this!'—and off we go again, dramatizing two times two and diluting our backbones some more.

"Even laymen now realize that education is not preparing for life, it is life! So, how silly it seems to build up a concept of living whereby hard reality must be sweetened and sugared beyond recognition before taken! Just as many worthwhile individuals would result from a social system built on 'Work for work's sake, as have emerged from the current fad of 'Work for play's sake.'

"Instructors should make children realize that work in itself needn't be disagreeable; can in fact be enjoyable and invigorating. If teachers (and I am preparing to be one) would follow such a program, the people in our United States would be better, happier and more properous citizens!"

Bernice L. Smith—age 20

AND now comes Heap Big Medicine Talk from 19-year-old Robert Doyle of Denver, Colo. Admitting that he likes the movies—who doesn't!—and paying all due tribute to the great service which they are doing, Robert still asks, "ISN'T AMERICA RAISING A BUMPER CROP OF MOVIE-MAD FOOLS?"

"There is no doubt," says Bob, "that the movies are our favorite national movement and give splendid entertainment. But the debatable point is the idealistic nature of their stories . . . stories in which life is a bed of roses with all the thorns removed . . . in which the youthful struggler always turns out to be a famous success. IS THAT GOOD OR BAD FOR UNFORMED MINDS?

"It's a well-known fact that 'Americans always want a happy ending.' But is it good for them to have it? Should we young people always be coddled and guarded from shock or disappointment?

"Some, of course, will argue that 'an escape from reality' is both a pleasure and a necessity in these rushed, worried days. That may apply to older people whose characters are formed. But how about the young people who grow up on these fairy tales, fattened for the slaughter on false ideas and concepts? To such a softie, it is only a question of time before disillusionment crashes into his unprepared spirit.

"We can't dispense with movies—that's flat. But must they be such pap? Will it be said of us that we are THE MOVIE-MAIMED GENERATION?"

Timely Editorial

Sales Tax Chiseling.

It is to be hoped that the Senate committee investigating state affairs will find time before Feb. 28 to get around to the collection of the sales tax, as suggested to Chairman J. Ralph Seidner by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber submitted a comparison showing that while 1937 income from sales tax was increasing in Illinois and Michigan because of better general business, it was actually decreasing in Ohio. Last July, for instance, Illinois collections on sales of general merchandise increased 9.9 per cent over July, 1936, and Michigan collections went up 10.7 per cent. In Ohio there was a decrease of 11.9 per cent.

Some of the sales tax chiseling will be stopped by the amendment restricting remission of taxes to out-of-state buyers, for thousands of Ohio residents have been pretending they were "foreigners" and signing exemption slips with fictitious names.

There still remains the possibility that lax enforcement in other directions is allowing chiselers to evade tax payment. If so it is an injustice to purchasers who honestly pay sales tax and to merchants who honestly collect it—an injustice which should be stopped. —Youngstown Vindicator.

Revealing The Lottery Rackets

Editor's Note — While much has been said about lotteries, and various other forms of commercialized gambling, it appears that many people do not yet understand the crooked methods of gambling racketeers or realize that the billions of dollars thus wasted each year would be sufficient to provide comfortable living for millions of the "ill-nourished, ill-clad and ill-housed" people in the United States. Along this line, the following from the Memphis Commercial Appeal is illuminating.

Harllee Branch, assistant postmaster general, ordered officials to watch out for a flood of lottery tickets from Cuba on the same day detectives representing District Attorney Dewey of New York grabbed "Dixie" Davis and George Weinberg in Philadelphia. The two items really went well together, for Davis and Weinberg are the reputed heirs of the $100,000,000-a-year lottery racket organized by the late Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer. The New York lottery rackets are not the only ones, but the "take" attributed to one gang gives an idea of what it costs the American people to be royally flimflammed each year.

No one knows, as a matter of fact, just how much suckers do pay for the privilege of contributing their more or less hard-earned money to those smarter if not better than they. Estimates of the annual lottery "take" vary from $2,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 and up, and all are made carefully and with some semblance of accuracy and acceptability. To be fair, though, one has to put the expenditure in racket lottery tickets down as the devil of a lot of money people could use otherwise to far greater advantage. The fact that men and women continue to bite at this sort of bait probably goes to prove there is no real cure for a sucker, for every effort is made to educate the public, and besides that, the law smashes when, as and if it can.

There are two general types of lotteries, of course. One type is operated as honestly as such things can be run, but even then the player has hardly any chance to get his money back. The other type lottery is a gyp game from beginning to end, and with the player out before he comes to bat. In that classification are "numbers," "policy," and many other egregious swindles of the same sort. There are football and baseball pools, too, and they are no more on the up-and-up than the folks who operate them, for the whole business is against the law and hence runs as a fly-by-night and devil-take-the-hindmost proposition.

Then there is the genial habit of certain gentry who counterfeit the tickets issued by the more reputable lotteries. It is part of the record, for example, that only 30,000 tickets of 3,000,000 sold a year or so in a Cuban lottery ever got so far as the drawing even. It all adds up to the conclusion that the gentleman who estimated the birth rate of easy marks and suckers at one a minute underestimated the matter tremendously. Under the best possible conditions the prizes awarded amount to nothing more nor less than bait to lure another crop of fish into the net. The business is built on a wrong foundation, in the first place, because it appeals to emotions and desires that are essentially delusive and uneconomic.

The potential purchaser of a lottery ticket should remember that even if the ticket is not bogus, which is always a question, his chance of winning is about that of the celluloid dog chasing the asbestos cat through the nether regions. There are other objections to the game in plenty, but that is a very practical one that should be compelling and too often isn't.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

—By O. O. McINTYRE

DIARY: A grand letter from Elsie Robinson, the lady journalist, as thoughtful a friend as a fellow can have. And a note from Ruth Briggs, Clare's widow, down in Virginia and talking over the phone to Harry Burton about all the anodynes for a sick world.

So came news of the Bugs Baers who have been kihooting through the mid-west where The Bugs made 26 speeches in 5 days and never muffed a home-cooked chicken dinner. Came a radio repair man who showed me checks totaling $380 for magazine stories sold during a month.

Theodore Dreiser and Alma Clayburgh to dinner and Dreiser in high conversational trim. Then later with my lady to see Fannie Hurst's new apartment at the Hotel des Artists and afterward dropping into El Morocco, talking to Nancy Hoyt, gazetteer of the elan folk.

There is a batch of names newspapermen try to write correctly but somewhere between the typewriter and printed page they come cropper. It's well-nigh impossible to land Russel Crouse with one l, get the hyphen between the first two names of Norman-Bel Geddes or put the two a's in the last name of Margaret Sullavan. Then, of course, the two Katharines—Hepburn and Cornell—who insist on first names carrying the two a's. F. P. A. used to fill much columnar space reproducing the various spellings of Reinald Werrenrath, the singer, when he was on tour. My own pet name stumbler is Jules Glaenzer's last one.

With the Ringling family in control of the circus again, the boss job falls to John Ringling North, hand-tutored under the Ringling chieftain known and beloved under the big tops as "Mister Jawn." He has much of the shyness and taciturnity of John Ringling and circus employes swear by him. Superstitious show folk believe thoroughly that an important death among them is followed by two more, and point to the three theory in the passing of Lillian Leitzel, John Ringling and Dexter Fellows.

Leonora Hughes comes back from Argentina for the first time in years, one of the wealthiest widows in South America. Her young husband was killed in a motor boat accident two years ago, leaving his fortune to her. Miss Hughes was a top-notcher in the ballroom dancing furore and for a time was the partner of Maurice, after he and Florence Walton dissolved their partnership. When she married the Argentine in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Maurice jumped up during the services and rushed to the street, sobbing. She was a Brooklyn girl.

Orson Welles continues a wonder kiddie of the theater at 23. His production of Julius Ceasar in modern dress with practically no scenery was a seasonal triumph—produced on the proverbial shoe string. Welles' upbringing may offer a sidelight to parents in problems of juvenile behaviourism. In knee pants he began to travel extensively with his father to all parts of the world. Treated always as a grown-up, he went to bed when he pleased, never ate in the children's dining room and was constantly drawn into conversation with his elders.

Dale Carnegie is out front and riding hard as the biggest money-maker among the literateurs for 1937. His book on how to win people will alone mop up a quarter million in royalties and second serial rights. His school of public speaking is the most profitable in the world and his newspaper column is taking on. To say nothing of his radio and lecture profits. And no one is quite so bewildered as he. Unless it is his hooters.

Bagatelles: F. P. A., who so long emulated Samuel Pepys in type, was recently stricken with a kidney stone, just as Pepys was. . . . The Duke of Windsor slows up his smoking by nibbling old-fashioned stick licorice. . . . Theodore Dreiser is reputedly planning a ponderous volume dealing with his sum-up of life and its meaning. . . . Henry Wallace is the most widely hissed of the New Dealers at the news reels.

Chronogenic note: He was a study in brown, resplendent in the morning flow up Park avenue. Brown overcoat, oxfords, hat, etc. A disheveled reveler in a taxi leaned out in passing to moan: "Buddy, I have a swell brown taste to go with your outfit."

Recipes Feature Cherries

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Service Institute of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

What is the first thing that comes to your mind when the name of George Washington is mentioned? Undoubtedly, you will give the same answer that most people would, namely cherries or cherry tree. Since Washington's birthday is observed tomorrow, most homemakers will be giving special thought to delicious cherry recipes they can serve.

Pauline Schofield

The favors of the month will be hatchets, hats, or cherry logs and the refreshments sure to include the ever popular red cherry. Whether these be sweet or sour cherries, canned, frozen, or the Maraschino variety, they will all remind us of the favorite story about the Father of our Country.

Cherry Log Filling.

2 cups sour pitted red cherries
⅔ cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons corn starch

Drain juice from cherries, add sugar, heat to boiling point. Add corn starch combined with enough cold water to make thin paste. Stir mixture constantly, continue cooking until it has boiled for 5 minutes Add butter and cherries and allow to cool.

Cake Recipe.

1 5 oz bottle Maraschino cherries
2 eggs well beaten
1 cup sugar
1 cup pastry flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup hot milk
½ teaspoon lemon extract

Beat eggs until light yellow and creamy—add sugar and continue beating. Sift together dry ingredients; add to egg mixture and beat again. Add hot milk and flavoring. Pour into baking pan, bake at 350 degrees until light to the touch and evenly browned. Prepare a sponge cake by the above recipe, bake in jelly roll pan, bottom of which has been covered with paper and buttered. When cake is done, turn out of pan on wrapping paper sprinkled with powdered sugar—trim edges from cake — spread with cherry filling and roll like jelly roll. Tie paper in place around roll and allow to chill. When roll is cold and firm, remove paper and frost with favorite chocolate or vanilla frosting Garnish with Maraschino cherries.

Cherry and Rice Whip.

1 cup sour pitted cherries drained
1 cup cooked rice
1 cup powdered sugar
1 cup cream, whipped
few drops lemon juice

Cook the rice 20 minutes in eight times its volume of rapidly boiling salted water. When tender, drain and chill. Mix the fruit, rice sugar and lemon juice together, fold in the whipped cream.

More sugar may be needed Chill thoroughly before serving. Serves eight.

Black Cherry Pie.

½ pint heavy cream
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 No. 2½ can black pitted cherries
1 rich pastry shell (chilled)

Drain cherries. Add cornstarch to juice and boil until it thickens. While juice is cooling, beat together cream, vanilla and sugar until firm. Pour in pastry shell and lay cherries on top of cream. Pour cold cherry and cornstarch mixture over pie and chill in refrigerator until ready to serve Recipe serves 6 or 8

Cherry Roll.

18 vanilla wafers (-inch diameter)
1 cup chopped Maraschino cherries
1 cup cream, whipped stiff

Whip cream and fold in cherries. Spread one tablespoon of the mixture on a wafer, press another on top spread that and continue adding and spreading wafers until all are used. As the stack grows, lay it sidewise. Frost the outside with the remaining cream mixture and roll in chopped salted pecan meats. Roll in waxed paper and chill for several hours Cut in diagonal slices and serve with a sliver of angelica.

BUSINESS WOMEN GIVE ANNUAL MUSICALE-TEA

Carl Schodorf, Glee Club Members Offer Brilliant Performance Before 250 At Mansfield-Leland Hotel Sunday Afternoon.

A BRILLIANT performance probably most fully characterizes the presentations of both Carl Schodorf, Columbus baritone, and members of the glee club yesterday afternoon. At the annual musicale tea given by the Business and Professional Women's club at 4 p. m. Sunday, familiar music was sung to 250 members and guests in the large ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Opening the afternoon with a group of three songs the 20 members of the glee club blended their voices so smoothly that it sounded almost like one singer. Miss Myrtle Booth directed and Mrs. Fred H. (Minnie Marks) Cahall accompanied.

In the absence of Mr. Schodorf's accompanist, Miss Dorothy D Boyles, Mrs. Cahall also accompanied the guest singer. The numbers selected by the baritone were both familiar to the audience and suited to Mr. Schodorf's voice. His singing appealed to the audience so greatly that he was called back for two encores. He sang "Sylvia" by Oley Speaks and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

Of the glee club's songs those which were perhaps most polished and most appealing were "Once On a Summer Day" by Mitchell-Horworth in which Mrs Emery (Eleanor Stone) Smith did the solo part, and the encore number "Coquetry" vied in audience appeal with "My Little Banjo" by William Dichmont.

Other numbers of the glee club were "To You" by Speaks, "Indian Cradle Song" by Matthews, "In My Garden" by Firestone-Riegger, "Allah's Holiday" and the ever popular "Giannia Mia" both by Frimi-Riegger, "The Little Old Garden" by Hewitt and "Carmena" by Wilson-Bartlett.

Most impressive and moving of the numbers done by Mr Schodorf were "Because" by D'Ardelot and "Selections From the Desert Song" by Romberg. Although the familiarity of these songs is partly responsible, Mr. Schdorf showed precision and fine interpretation in both.

The baritone's other offerings included "Invictus" by Huhn, "Song of Joy" by Douty, "Give a Man a Horse" by O'Hara, "Kerry Dance" by Malloy and "Goodbye" by Tosti.

Members of the glee club include the Misses Estella K. Arras, Lucile Beattie, Catherine Black, Jane Foltz, Marie Kalbfleisch, Marie Weil, Esther Dunham, Aletha Lorentz, Nina Pollock, Thelma Reed, Mabel Koppes, Dorothy Landers, Minnie Lauden and Clara Miller, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. H. K. (Margaret) Sellick, Lillian Frank Davis, Mrs. Mary Gruber and Mrs. Claude (Ruth) Ewing.

At the close of the musical hour tea was served by the club's two vice presidents, Miss Mae Douglass and Miss Carrie Willett. The table was set-up in a modified wedge shape and the decorations included a long basket of yellow daffodils and blue-tinted carnations and sweetpeas with baby's breath and pussy willows. Yellow and blue tapers were used to light the room.

Members of the organization supervising the arrangements were the Misses Margaret Wheeler, Marvel Cowell, Teresa Perfter, Florence Lentzy, Florence Young, Arta Cairns, Georgiana Chidsey, Jeanette Hoffman, Grace Bonnell and Esther Snyder, Mrs. Falsom B. Teeter, Mrs. Anthony Augustine and Mrs. Carlton Fernyak.

Members of the Greek-American Girls' club met at the home of Miss Elaine Logos, 326 North Bowman street, yesterday for a short business meeting and initiation of candidates. Those initiated were the Misses Lily Patrenous and Mary Frances Kaler.

Paul Williams Speaks To Group

Moving pictures featuring Mansfield industries and parks were shown to members of the Viewre club by Paul W. Williams at the meeting recently in the Chamber of Commerce assembly room. Mrs. Arquette Rust, jr., read a paper on Ohio industries and Miss Rhea Doolittle concluded the program with a paper on Nepal, a country in India.

The group then adjourned to the home of Mrs. William Weller, Millsboro road, for a social meeting. The affair was attended by eight members and four guests, Mrs. F. G. Mitchell, Miss Opal Lindegger, Mrs. Roy MacDowall, and Mrs. Christopher Eyvindson. Mrs. L. F. Rondell, 60 Arlington avenue, will be hostess for the next meeting, March 18.
